Finding My Path Forward

Day 3 | A quiet-time reflection workbook

You have looked at what may be holding you back and where you can make room. Today, you can begin exploring practical paths that may support the freedom, flexibility, and resources you need to serve in the ways that matter to you.

SCRIPTURE FOR REFLECTION

Read Proverbs 16:9 in your Bible. Bring your plans to God with open hands, knowing that you can take wise steps without knowing the whole journey.

A simple prayer to begin

Lord, give me wisdom to see what fits my life, discernment to recognize what is not right for me, and courage to take a thoughtful next step. Amen.

Before you write

You do not need to choose a business or spend money today. Explore the possibilities in quiet, and return after the live session to revise your thoughts.

What Am I Working Toward?

Begin with the life you want to support, not a business idea.

1. What would more freedom allow me to do for my family, community, or the people I want to serve?

2. What kind of flexibility or income would actually make a difference in my current season?

3. What strengths, skills, experiences, or interests might I be able to build on?

4. What limits do I need to respect right now (time, energy, money, responsibilities)?

Explore Possible Paths

Notice what interests you before deciding what fits.

Possible paths to research include selling digital products, affiliate marketing, offering a service online, or teaching through an existing program. Each has different skills, costs, timelines, and risks. None guarantees income.

1. Which two or three options would I like to understand better? Why?

2. Who might I enjoy helping, and what problem or need could I help address?

3. What would I need to learn or verify before I could try one option?

Does This Fit My Real Life?

Compare options using the same practical questions.

Write two options you want to explore. Rate each question from 1 (poor fit) to 5 (strong fit). A high score is a starting point for research, not a promise of success.

FIT QUESTION	OPTION A	OPTION B
Fits my available time	___ / 5	___ / 5
Fits my starting budget	___ / 5	___ / 5
Uses strengths I already have	___ / 5	___ / 5
Interests me enough to learn	___ / 5	___ / 5
Supports my freedom goals	___ / 5	___ / 5
Risks feel manageable	___ / 5	___ / 5

What I still need to find out before choosing:

My Next Wise Step

Leave with one small experiment, not pressure to decide everything.

One or two paths I want to research further are...

If learning the skills I need requires an investment, what creative, resourceful ways could I make it possible?

One step I can take in the next seven days to begin creating those resources is...

One question I want to ask during the live session is...

After the live session: What did I learn that changed my thinking?
