My Shofar Global Journey

(The Abridged Version)

My name is Brett Rademacher.

Many Spirit-led Christians around the globe are sensing something is seriously amiss in the world today. Even if they don't know exactly what IT is.

And it's not just morally, economically or politically either. There's a much deeper spiritual sense that something has shifted significantly in the spiritual realm.

Many also are being prompted by God to get involved with something much bigger than themselves, with more purpose than what they are currently doing. But they don't have any idea what IT is.

If that's you, this may be of real interest to you.

God has given me a vision for a global Christian business network (Shofar Global Network) of like-minded, Spirit-led believers to help them prepare for the turbulent times ahead.

I would like to share my Shofar Global Journey with you so you have a better understanding of how this all came about. And I pray that the Holy Spirit will speak to you as you read this.

I could write a book about everything God has led me through over the last 30 years. So I've condensed the bare essence of my story into this abridged version. I will write the unabridged version, with many more stories, at a later time.

For a broader perspective behind my journey and the Shofar Global Network vision, see the Origin Story & Global Vision.

Now before I begin, I want to make something crystal clear right up front. This is not something I came up with on my own. So here we go.

"Write the vision; make it plain on tablets, so he may run who reads it"

Habakkuk 2:2

For starters, I am a believer in the one true God (Yahweh) and a follower of His Son Jesus (Yeshua), who is my Lord and Savior. I have been baptized and filled with the Holy Spirit (Ruach). As of this writing, I am 64, have been married for 35 years, and am the father of eight children. I became a Christian in 1981 at age 20 and was filled with the Holy Spirit two weeks later.

Shortly after I started reading my Bible, I was gullible or naïve enough to believe that God still speaks today. I truly believed it right out of the gate.

And I desperately wanted to hear His voice for myself, not just read about it. For a number of years, I went from church to church across different denominations, looking for a church where people actually believed God speaks today, and they were truly hearing Him for themselves.

I wanted God to speak to me personally, and I wanted to be around other believers who were experiencing that as well. But I didn't have any success with that.

I figured the reason God was not speaking to me was because I had been too big a sinner, or was not good enough, or was not a pastor or in some kind of ministry, didn't pray enough, or had not memorized enough Bible verses. I'm not kidding either. Those were the kinds of thoughts I had.

So I settled on the fact that God was not going to speak to me, and I needed to accept it. But I still believed what the Bible said about God speaking to His people and that was still valid today. I could find nothing in the Bible that said He stopped, and I had read enough stories in books about God speaking to people that I knew it was true. I just wasn't experiencing it.

In 1991, my wife Michelle and I, newly married in Spokane, WA, moved to Texas for a business I had started there about 6 months prior. There was a restaurant we liked a lot, and I ate there quite often. The owner, Kareem, was a Muslim who had been raised Christian. We would talk about all kinds of interesting subjects.

One day as we were discussing spiritual stuff, Kareem said to me, "You are only talking about things you have read about, not what you have experienced." It was absolutely true.

At the time, I had not heard God speak to me or experienced any of the miraculous events I had read about in the Bible. But I did still believe what the Bible said, nonetheless. I knew in my spirit without a doubt it was true.

The entire Bible, not just bits and pieces, even if I did not fully understand it.

Around 1994, I read about R. G. LeTourneau (1888-1969). He was a successful Christian businessman and an engineering genius who dropped out of school at age 14. His company manufactured 70% of the earth-moving equipment used by the Allies during World War II.

He credited God with giving him his ideas and inventions. He was known as 'God's Businessman' by his contemporaries and was well-known for donating 90% of his income to Christian charity.

Coming up with ideas that helped people, traveling the world and making money so he could help others in need, really resonated with me. So I prayed and sincerely asked God, "Could I be like R. G. LeTourneau, too?" Then I completely forgot about it.

As best I can tell, my Shofar Global Journey began in 1996 while I was driving down a highway in Texas. Out of the blue, I had this thought: "You are going to have a global marketing organization involving many people using cutting edge technology."

It was very subtle. And at the time, I had no idea it was God speaking to me.

He had never spoken to me before (that I was aware of, anyway), so I just figured it was a random thought. And besides, there was absolutely nothing going on in my life at that time that even closely resembled that thought.

In 1998, I felt strongly compelled to move up to Alaska to be closer to my parents because my dad's health was failing. In his younger days, he had been a U.S. Navy fighter pilot, a Blue Angel, and a test pilot. I had a gut feeling he was not going to live much longer, so I wanted to be close to my parents. My dad died not long after, in 1999.

With moving up to Alaska, I had to start over after leaving my businesses in Texas. And the Internet was just starting to become viable for sales, marketing, and business.

So I rented a cheap, ugly office, and I spent three months researching on the Internet like it was a job. I spent eight, ten, sometimes twelve or more hours a day, six to seven days a week trying to figure out what the Internet was about.

I had 4 questions I was asking myself:

1. What is the Internet?
2. Where is the hidden opportunity for me?
3. How can I leverage my current abilities?
4. And how can I avoid being geographically challenged?

I knew I would not be living in Alaska forever, and I didn't want to have to start over again.

Then about 3 months in, one day all these pieces I had been researching just instantly slotted together in my head.

It was a unique concept for a four-part hybrid business model for doing 'remote sales' over the Internet. Back then I called it 'virtual sales.'

It was a real epiphany. It lit me up both mentally and spiritually, and the concept was clear as day. Without God actually "speaking" to me, I knew in my spirit He was without a doubt leading me to do this.

However, this concept required a new kind of Internet-based software system that I did not have and did not exist. And to top it off, I knew absolutely nothing about programming or how to build and run a software company.

The next two years turned out to be quite hard and frustrating, to say the least, as I tried to figure out how to get the software I had in mind developed and working. Even with a number of setbacks, I was able to make incremental, forward-moving progress.

For almost 2 years, I listened to countless people tell me things like, "That will never work." "You can't do sales like that." "Don't waste your time." And my personal favorite, "I don't get it."

And to top it off, because I was so new and naïve to all this, I was even ripped off and taken advantage of a few times.

I kept moving forward in spite of all that, because I knew they were wrong, God had given me the model, and I knew that was what He was having me do.

But it did get to the point where we were financially desperate, and one day I came home and told my wife we needed to pray. Basically it was, "Father, I truly believe I am doing exactly what You have called me to do. But if I am not, I need You to show me what I am supposed to be doing. But if I am doing what I am supposed to be doing, we need You to provide, because we are desperate."

The next week, I received a $5,000 check for a small consulting project. Then a few weeks later I received another check for another consulting project. This time for $10,000. A few people and companies were starting to become interested in my ideas and how I could help.

God answered our prayer and confirmed our path. We had definitely been in a dark valley, but there was still a very steep mountain to climb. However, that was the point where things started turning around.

Towards the end of 1999, I was a few weeks out from launching my first (very rudimentary) remote sales app, when a friend of mine called and told me that Zig Ziglar was starting a new direct sales company offering personal development and sales training.

In spite of everything I had been working on and being almost ready to launch my software, I knew right away, while we were talking on the phone, that I was supposed to put the launch on pause and get involved with Zig Ziglar's new company, without even knowing much about it. So I did, as I knew in my spirit that was where God was leading me next.

Over the next year, I ended up becoming the top sales rep and sales team builder for Zig Ziglar's direct sales personal development and sales training company. I did it using the concepts and four-part hybrid business model God had given me, along with the rudimentary software system I was continuing to develop along the way.

There is absolutely no way this would have ever happened in the natural. I was working remotely from home, from Alaska. I was doing things that were not supposed to work. In fact, I was doing things completely differently, and in many cases the total opposite of how things were supposed to be done in that industry.

I was basically a 'nobody' in that industry as well. There were other people involved who were much more well-known and more successful than I was.

But God. It was totally God.

What I was doing was definitely novel at the time. And with the fact I was doing this from Alaska, of all places, with the kind of success I was having (even at that basic level) I was starting to get people's attention.

And I was able to prove that the concepts I was talking about actually worked. I want to point out that there was no way this would have happened if I had not changed direction and gotten involved with Zig's company, instead of just launching my first remote sales software app.

During that year something else strange (at least for me) started to happen.

I received prophetic words from 3 different people by email. At the time, I had no reference point for prophetic words whatsoever. So I had no idea what to make of them.

Two of the words had to do with me helping a lot of people make money through the Internet, and that it would happen very fast. The third person had a dream about me that I was never to share with anyone. And I never have.

In the early fall of 2000, because of the success I was having, I was asked by Zig Ziglar's son, Tom, if I would be interested in overseeing sales for their direct sales company. I declined the offer, as I knew that was not the direction God wanted me to go, even though it would have opened up all kinds of new opportunities in the long run.

A short time later, they sold the company to one of the top direct sales companies in the world at the time, that was doing over $1.5 billion a year in sales at the time, but I was not interested in continuing under the new ownership.

But even my small-scale success set the stage for what was to come next.

Later that fall, someone anonymously mailed me the book God@Work by Rich Marshall. People were sending me packages on a regular basis by then to get me interested in different business projects or opportunities, and I often didn't open them right away and threw them on a rack in my office.

The package with God@Work in it sat around unopened for a number of weeks. I finally opened it one day, simply out of frustration over what to do with my life next, and curiosity about what was in it.

God@Work completely changed the direction of my life.

While reading God@Work, I had a major God encounter that lasted several weeks. It was a major download of thoughts, ideas, concepts, and information, like something out of the movie The Matrix. But He was not 'speaking' to me like I thought He would.

During that time, God also impressed on me that it was He who had spoken to me when I had that thought, "You are going to have a global marketing organization, involving many people, using cutting edge technology."

It had NOT been some random thought.

During that time, God gave me a vision and business model for a global Christian-based network. I wrote it down in what became known as the 26-Page Letter.

That letter became the catalyst for launching a more advanced version of my software, built around the four-part hybrid business model God had given me in 1998.

After finishing my 26-Page Letter, I felt like I was supposed to it to a small group of people, mostly Christians, who had been involved with me, with Zig Ziglar's company, and had told me that whatever I was doing next, they wanted to be involved.

Even though most of the group were Christians, and they knew I was a Christian, sending that letter to them was totally out of my comfort zone. I was not used to being so upfront about my Christian faith in business.

That's because I always felt that some Christian business people who put a fish symbol on their business card or in their place of business were being manipulative, or trying to get a free pass on whether they were good at what they did, or getting people to put their guard down and automatically trust them.

And I was always leery of Christian business people that played on both sides of the fence. When it was convenient for them to play the money side, they played that side. And when it was convenient to play the Christian card, they played that card.

I had seen and experienced enough of that in business that I did not want any part of that.

But God made it very clear to me going forward that I was to be upfront about my faith in business. From my perspective, I didn't feel like I had a choice in the matter either.

For 20 years, I had been praying, waiting and hoping that God would speak to me. And now He was, even though it was not in an audible voice like I had expected.

So right before I emailed the 26-Page Letter to that small group of people, I took a deep breath and said to myself, "This changes everything."

And man, that was the understatement of my life.

Then at the beginning of 2001, after two years of struggling to put all the pieces together, I launched the new enterprise-level remote sales software system with an affiliate program built in.

This software was designed to be used by individuals, sales leaders with teams, and companies with large sales organizations that wanted to adopt this new style of Internet-based remote sales. And it could be used for basically any type of business.

A few weeks after I launched it, I was lying in bed on a Sunday morning when God spoke into my spirit and said, "Go to church and get anointed with oil for business."

The God of the Universe spoke directly into my spirit and gave me marching orders.

I was completely undone. That was the first time God spoke directly into my spirit. Until you have experienced that personally, you have no idea how powerful and reality-altering that really is.

I was not planning on going to church that morning. Now I was literally afraid not to go. So I went to the very next church service that morning. And immediately after the service, I went up to the pastor and said, "God told me to go to church and get anointed with oil for business."

He looked at me kind of strange. But he found someone with 'pocket' anointing oil, anointed me with oil, and prayed for me. I don't think he had ever had someone ask him to anoint them with oil for business before. LOL

Shortly after that, just about everything I was working on took off.

Over the next 2 ½ years, I ended up becoming a pioneer and recognized expert in Internet-based remote sales. And I also became one of the top people in the world in my niche.

I did this by applying the hybrid business model God had given me, and the ideas He gave me for architecting my remote sales software system.

I built numerous remote teams with thousands of people, and several had tens of thousands. I also had almost 30,000 affiliates using and promoting my remote sales software system.

With everything we had going on got to where we were sending out over 20 million emails a day. You could have bought a nice car every month, for what I was paying our server bill.

I used the software on all of my own remote sales projects and licensed it to top sales leaders and companies with large remote sales teams. I had numerous other interrelated business projects going on as well, and built up a remote staff of 32 people, including 6 in-house custom programmers. We were doing remote work back in the early 2000s.

I helped tens of thousands of remote salespeople around the world succeed through the software, systems, and training I had developed around that four-part hybrid business model God had given me. I invested 7-figures into the development of the remote sales software and we had a stellar reputation in our niche.

It was life-changing for many people. They could work from home and make sales through the Internet, no matter where they lived. All they needed was a computer and an Internet connection.

All while living in Alaska

Years later, during COVID, remote sales finally went mainstream globally, out of necessity.

I tell you this because God does speak today. And He does give real ideas that actually prove themselves in the marketplace. God can "show you great and hidden things that you do not know" (Jeremiah 33:3), that can work in business too.

But I want to point out that this all started because I was willing to go wherever God was leading me to go. Regardless of how I felt. Regardless of how things looked. Regardless of how hard it was.

Even when I had no idea where it was leading. Even when people were telling me what I was doing wouldn't work. Even when my parents were questioning me about what I was doing with my life. Even when I had doubts and fears.

Even when I didn't know it was God speaking to me, because it was just a sense of knowing in my spirit that I was supposed to do it.

All of this would never have happened if I had not left everything behind and moved to Alaska to be close to my parents, without any idea of what I was going to do next.

But that is just the beginning of my Shofar Global Journey.

Now if you are still wondering or questioning whether or not God really speaks today, particularly about business, I highly recommend Gunnar Olson's book, Business Unlimited.

It is the best book I have read about hearing God's voice and walking in the supernatural as a Christian in the marketplace. Gunnar is the founder of the International Christian Chamber of Commerce.

In Business Unlimited, Gunnar tells his story of hearing and obeying God's voice and experiencing His miraculous, supernatural power. He describes how this led to impacting nations, presidents, and kings, and influencing countless people around the world.

Gunnar is a real-life example of what hearing and obeying God as a Christian in the marketplace looks like. I have permission to give away his book Business Unlimited for free. If you would like a copy, contact me.

Back in February 2003, I 'just happened' to meet a Christian woman named Kim at an airport in Hawaii while I was waiting for a flight back to Maui. I was there on a business trip.

While we were talking and waiting for our flight, Kim told me she had been quite successful in real estate before becoming a Christian. She had also discovered that God had given her the gift of prophecy.

As I mentioned previously, I had three people email me prophetic words in 2000, but I had never personally met anyone with a prophetic gift.

I was quite naïve about the prophetic at the time, so I asked her to "do mine." She told me, "It does not work that way." I asked her, "Well, how does it work?" She said, "I would need to pray about it." So I gave her my contact information.

A few months later, she called me and said, "Brett, I have a word for you from the Lord."

As soon as she said that I knew instantly in my spirit, without a doubt, that whatever she was going to tell me was from God. She asked for my fax number and faxed it over. The fax was about a page and a half.

The primary message was that I was about to come into a time when I was going to be abased and that God had purposed it. And I was not to fight it, or it would take longer, because God had many things for me to do.

UGH, I knew right away that being 'abased' was not good. In fact, I even double-checked the dictionary to see if there was a different definition, so I could find an escape hatch. LOL.

I still have that fax and read it once in a while to remind myself 'not to fight it.' I have learned over the years that the real struggle was learning to surrender my own will to God. There are a lot of stories in that alone.

But I can tell you from personal experience that it has definitely been a battle.

The verse in scripture says, "Jesus learned obedience by the things he suffered" (Hebrews 5:8.) I have a much better understanding of that process now. I had no reference for that back then.

About a month later, in May 2003, I was at a major event for the sales distributors for one of the companies I was involved with.

Now, going back in time a bit, to the end of 2000 shortly before God told me to "Go to church and get anointed with oil", I had a Chiropractor who had been interested in getting involved with Zig Ziglar's company, contact me about a liquid nutritional product he was promoting. Initially I said no 5 or 6 times.

But he was relentless, so I finally agreed to at least try it. He shipped me 3 bottles.

I actually thought it was really good. Much better than I expected, but that still did not get me interested in getting involved selling it. But what got my attention was that when we started running low, my wife asked me if we could get more because she really liked it, and our kids really liked it too.

The reason that really got my attention was because my wife was not into taking most nutritional products. That was the definite attention getter for me.

So prior to getting involved, I flew down from Alaska to southern California to meet with the company owner. They had been doing business for 5 ½ years, and were only doing $200,000 a month in sales. For a direct sales company, and for that amount of time, that was surprisingly low for how good the product was.

During our meeting, I told the owner about the unique way I was planning to sell and build a remote sales team from Alaska to sell his product. He tried to convince me that was not how you did business with his product.

Overall we had a good meeting. But as I was leaving his office, the last thing he said to me was, "That will never work, but good luck."

How is that for encouragement? LOL

I was used to hearing that, so it didn't affect me in the least.

How I started out was rather humorous. The chiropractor who had been instrumental in getting me involved in the company was actually a very good, convincing writer.

So I took all the emails he had sent me trying to get me involved in the company, edited them and put them in one document. I then sent the document to 20 people who said they wanted to be involved in what I was doing next. 18 of the 20 got involved. A number of them went on to earn 6-figure annual incomes, with one even earning a 7-figure annual income.

Fast forward to May 2003. I ended up being the primary driving force behind the company's sales exploding from $200,000 a month to over $20 million a month in less than two and a half years.

Annualized, their sales went from $2.4 million a year in sales to almost a quarter billion dollars a year. Their sales were skyrocketing and the trajectory was on an exponential growth curve. Basically straight up. My commissions for just the month of May 2003 alone were over $350,000.

What was really mind-blowing was that we only had one product. And we were only doing business in one country. I was doing things that had never been done before in the industry. What I was doing was not just benefiting my sales organization, but positively impacting the entire company.

In the span of just 2 ½ short years, I had gone from relative obscurity to becoming one of the top people in the world in direct sales, with what God had shown, His leading, and His anointing. All from Alaska.

By this time I was getting countless different offers from all kinds of companies reaching out to me. From running companies, overseeing their entire sales team, having products custom made for me, to completely funding a startup for me.

However, the thing that really stood out for me personally was not that I was making over $350,000 a month from this one project alone.

I was able to put the staff, plus the software, systems and the automations, in place, to where I was only working on this project for 15-20 hours a week, and the rest of the time I was putting into the numerous other projects I was involved with.

In May of 2003, I was a featured speaker at a major event for this company. There were hundreds of reps attending, with the majority of them from my sales organization. They had to be making at least $5,000 a month for 3 months in a row in order to attend.

Shortly before the event started, I was walking down a massive, empty hallway of this luxury resort towards the conference room. Then completely out of the blue I was hit with this sudden realization that everything I was working on was not what God was ultimately calling me to do.

All the different projects I was involved in at the time were not the main thing God was calling me to do with this global Christian business network, even though there were a lot of Christians involved with what I was doing.

All these projects and experiences were just practice, a training run so to speak.

This impacted me so much I stopped walking, and I started asking God what exactly I was supposed to be doing, because in spite of the success I was having, I truly wanted to be doing what God was calling me to do, whatever that was.

All of a sudden I was literally depressed when I should have been on top of the world, with all the success I was having. And I was about to speak at a company event packed with my sales team who are all having all kinds of success.

And wouldn't you know, right as this is happening, the owner of the company comes walking around the corner into this massive empty hallway, and he can tell by my countenance that there is obviously something wrong.

He asked me, "Brett, what's wrong?" I told him, "Nothing, I am fine," because he never would have understood. I am normally quite an energetic public speaker, especially in those kinds of situations. But I was quite subdued speaking at that event.

About a month later, in June 2003, the 'wheels totally came off the cart' on this remote sales project, because of the owner's unethical actions, deceit and lies. Long story, real short… It ended up costing me a LOT of money, caused a LOT of problems, and completely upended my life as I knew it. And it was the catalyst for the beginning of my 'being abased.'

I write about that experience in more detail in my Shofar Global Manifesto document. I did write the full story in a separate document, but I never released it publicly.

Now this was also the beginning of when God really started showing up in my life in an entirely different manner and a much more powerful way. He used that life-altering experience to begin to "open my eyes" to His ways.

Even though He purposed that 'the rug would be pulled out from under me', I can say now I am eternally grateful for what God has done in my life and shown me since then.

And I would never want to go back, and give up the eternal things I have now for the temporal things I lost. There are lots of God stories that go with that process, but those are for a later time.

At the end of 2003, we moved from Alaska to Incline Village at the northern end of Lake Tahoe on the Nevada side. In 2004, while I was on a business trip in California, a business associate kept asking me what I was going to call the global Christian business network that God had given me a vision for.

I didn't have a name. And I had no idea what to call it. But she kept bugging me and asking over and over again what the name was. I got so tired of her repeatedly asking me what the name was that I finally asked God, "What is the name of this global Christian business network?"

And He told me right away. He said, "It's the horn that the Hebrews blew."

I had no idea what that was called, so I had to ask the woman who kept asking me what the name was, "What was the name of the horn the Hebrews blew?"

She told me, "It's called a shofar. And the reason I know that is because a man came to our church a few weeks ago who has a ministry involving the shofar." I then told her, "That's the name. It's the Shofar Global Network."

And that's how I got the name. God gave it to me. Because someone kept bugging me.

A shofar is the horn the Hebrews blew in the Old Testament of the Bible. It's typically made from a ram's horn, but it can be made from the horns of other kosher animals, with the kudu antelope being very popular.

The word 'shofar' is most often translated as "trumpet" in the Bible. However, the Tree of Life Version, which is a Jewish Messianic Bible, uses the word "shofar".

Here is a side-by-side comparison for an example.

Exodus 20:18 TLV reads: "All the people witnessed the thundering and the lightning, and the sound of the shofar, and the mountain smoking. When the people saw it, they trembled and stood far off."

In the English Standard Version they use "trumpet" which is most common with English translations.

Exodus 20:18 ESV reads: "Now when all the people saw the thunder and the flashes of lightning and the sound of the trumpet and the mountain smoking, the people were afraid and trembled, and they stood far off."

Later, I learned how significant the shofar is.

The Hebrews used the shofar as a call to worship, a call to assembly, a call to repentance, and even a call to war. It was also used to proclaim freedom and sound alarms, and it was used in battle. It can symbolize the voice, spirit, and breath of God.

The shofar is what God had the Hebrews sound to bring the walls of Jericho down.

"It will be when they make a long blast with the ram's horn, when you hear the sound of the shofar, have all the people shout a loud shout—then the wall of the city will fall down flat, and the people will go up, everyone straight ahead." - Joshua 6:5 TLV

And it's not just the Hebrews that sounded the shofar. In the Complete Jewish Bible the angels will sound the shofar in the Book of Revelation.

"Now the seven angels with the seven shofars prepared to sound them." - Revelation 8:6 CJB

So the shofar is no small thing in the context of how God uses it.

While I was living in Lake Tahoe, a series of divinely orchestrated events I cover in other documents led my friend Joey to introduce me to Os Hillman, a world leader in the Faith in the Marketplace movement.

Os's daily devotional, TGIF (Today God is First), had a profound impact on my life, and I encourage every Christian in the marketplace to subscribe to it.

Shortly after meeting Os, I flew him out to Lake Tahoe for a weekend. After I picked him up at the airport, we went out to eat.

Os felt prompted by the Holy Spirit to tell me, "Brett, the business arena you are involved with is controlled by a spirit of greed and deceit and God is calling you to play a part in changing that."

There is more about "greed and deceit" in business that I go over in my Shofar Global Network presentation, which you can watch here if you have not done so already.

In the late spring of 2005, Os invited me to a Marketplace Leaders conference he was putting on in Atlanta, Georgia. Joey had become Os's business manager.

Joey found Os from the copy of God@Work I gave him. And then looked up Os after reading Os's endorsement inside God@Work.

At Joey's encouragement, I met with a prophetic prayer team trained by Johnny Enlow, who was a pastor at the time. Johnny and Elizabeth Enlow's ministry has since become quite well known internationally.

One of the members of the prophetic team indicated that something I was involved with was about to start, but was not clear what. After meeting with them, I asked Johnny if he had any insight into what that might mean. He said he would pray about it.

The next day, while I was visiting his church, Johnny stopped in the middle of his sermon, called me out and said, "Brett, I have a word for you from the Lord. It's time for you to go, go, go. You've been released."

I knew right away that was from God, but I still had no idea what that meant. After I flew back home to Lake Tahoe, the next thing I felt like I was supposed to do was fly out to visit my good friend Frank and his wife, Yuani, who were living in Texas at the time. Which I did.

At the end of our weekend together, as I was getting ready to leave, Frank (who is British) said, "I read this book years ago, and thought it was a bunch of hooey. But God told me to buy another copy and give it to you." So he did.

The book was 'The Final Quest' by Rick Joyner. That was one weird book. I don't recall much of what I read, but I could not put it down until I was done reading it. There was something in it that just grabbed my spirit. Later on, I tried reading a couple of Rick Joyner's other books, and God would not let me read them.

Shortly after flying home and finishing The Final Quest, I felt like the next thing I was supposed to do was fly out and visit another good friend of mine, Joe, who was living in Florida at the time.

The night before I flew out, I had an overwhelming sense that I was supposed to be going somewhere else in addition to Florida, but I had no idea where.

Even though I had no idea where else I would be going, I was wondering whether I was supposed to fly, drive, or possibly take a train there. I even looked up the train station closest to my destination in Florida. I had no idea how or where I was going, just that I was going to be going someplace else.

After my flight landed, Joe and I went out to dinner. When the topic of 'The Final Quest' came up, Joe mentioned that he knew the author, Rick Joyner. And that he also had friends up in Moravian Falls where Rick lived. That he had lived up in that area for a while. And he also had a sister in ministry that lived close by to Moravian Falls.

As he was telling me this, I immediately knew in the spirit that I was supposed to go up there.

As Joe was telling me about the area, I kept interrupting our conversation with, "Joe, I am supposed to go up there," and "Joe, I am supposed to go up there right away." Joe would just smile and casually laugh.

Finally, I said, "Joe, I am supposed to go up there tomorrow, and I am supposed to go by train, and I already know where the closest train station is. It's 85 miles away, and I need you to take me there tomorrow morning."

Joe just smiled, laughed again and said, "You are not going to believe this. But I have been telling my wife for years that you were supposed to go there, but I never said anything."

So the next day, Joe took me to the train station. He also called ahead to three people he felt I should meet. The overnight train took me as far as Raleigh, North Carolina. Then I had to rent a car and drive to Moravian Falls.

During the overnight train ride to Raleigh, I started getting a sense that I was supposed to move to Moravian Falls, NC.

The first person I met that Joe had connected me with was Jeff, who was a pastor. I shared my story up to that point with Jeff, and when I finished, I said to Jeff, "I am getting a sense I am supposed to move here."

Jeff immediately said, "You are supposed to move here, and what you are going to do will start like a wildfire and go around the globe."

His words hit me right in my spirit. I knew what he said was true. I just did not fully understand what that meant at the time. But I got a sense it was probably related to this global Christian business network, the Shofar Global Network.

The next Sunday I went to Jeff's church. After leaving the service, I was driving down the road when all of a sudden I had this deep revelatory understanding of the Bible story about the Rich Young Ruler drop down into my spirit (Luke 18:18–30).

It was so overwhelming I had to pull off the side of the road. I was sobbing and blowing snot bubbles. Not because I was sad or emotional. My body was simply overloaded, and I physically couldn't handle it.

The best way I can explain it is that it was like a scene in the old Star Trek TV series, where they would beam people in and out of the Starship Enterprise. Except it was in the Spirit.

After I got my "act together," I went back to where I was staying and wrote down notes for about an hour or so. I didn't realize at the time, but God was also giving me the heads-up to the narrow path journey I had chosen. (Luke 14:33).

During my initial 2-week visit, I also met Elizabeth Snelling, who was in her mid-sixties at the time. She became a very good friend of our family. She passed away in 2018.

Shortly after I met her, she came up to me and handed me a book she had been reading, Living on the Third River by Craig Hill. She told me that she had been reading it, but God had told her to give it to me. Boy, was that true.

'Living on the Third River' had a definite impact on my understanding of the importance of being a good steward of God-given finances, knowing that God is ALWAYS the source of everything in our lives, and that He can use all kinds of different channels for our provision.

The book teaches that how you manage and channel the resources God gives you will be the catalyst for Him giving you more because of your faithful stewardship.

It also covers the importance of not being controlled by the spirit of mammon, which is an entirely different and critical topic for discussion at a later time.

Another thing that happened during my initial visit was this: I was praying with my new friend, Neil, and a couple who were friends of his. His friend's wife unexpectedly looked at me and said, "God wants you to know everything you touch will turn to gold, but only if it is of Him."

This is one of the most important and powerful words God has ever given me, and I will tell you why. In business, there are all kinds of opportunities that can come your way. And you need to know if they're from God or not.

My perspective for several decades has been that ANY business project that is not of God is cursed. And I consider any project that comes my way cursed unless God says otherwise.

That is a safeguard I highly recommend. It will save you a lot of grief and trouble.

A good biblical example of this is in the book of Joshua (Joshua chapters 6 & 7). God specifically told the Israelites that after they took Jericho, all the gold, silver, bronze and iron in the city belonged to Him.

But one man disobeyed and took a robe, 200 pieces of silver, and a gold bar for himself.

And because of that one act of disobedience, the Israelites lost God's favor and protection. When God revealed who it was, Achan and his family were stoned to death.

This is a good reminder for all of us not to acquire things out of our own self-will that God has not assigned to us as our portion or inheritance.

After two weeks of supernatural experiences, divine appointments and confirmations, which caused me to postpone my flight back home multiple times, I knew without a shadow of a doubt we were supposed to move there.

I called my wife Michelle and said, "You are not going to believe this, but we are supposed to move here." She said, "Not the East Coast!" (We much prefer the western side of the U.S.).

I called her back a few hours later to "check her pulse." By then she knew as well that we were supposed to move to Moravian Falls.

Shortly after, we did move. (Lots of stories in the middle of all that as well.)

Shortly after we arrived in Moravian Falls in 2005, we were connected with Ellen through Carla Reed, who I had recently met. Later, God used Carla to impact my life in numerous ways. Carla passed away in 2025.

When Ellen heard about me and the Shofar Global Network from Carla, she felt like she was supposed to me give her shofar that had been given to her by a well-known messianic rabbi in Israel.

So we went to visit her. After Ellen gave me her shofar, I felt led to hand it to my second-oldest daughter, Rachel, to sound. She was 13 at the time. When she sounded it, having never sounded a shofar before, it was absolutely perfect. Clear and powerful.

Rachel was absolutely stunned. She looked at me with a bewildered look on her face and said, "That wasn't me!" I watched her sound it, and she was definitely under the anointing of the Holy Spirit when she sounded it. It was definitely not her.

Not long after moving to Moravian Falls in 2005, my wife Michelle was really struggling with everything we were going through. It was a tough time for both of us, but more so for her. She told God she just could not do it anymore and wanted to quit.

He told her, "It's too late. You can't quit. There's no one else." I have always taken that to apply to me as well. It's one of many 'anchor points' that God has given us over the years, to help us stay the course.

In 2006, Carla (who I just mentioned) invited me to a 3-day church conference. Several significant things happened at that meeting, but the one that had the most profound effect on me was picking up a small pamphlet called The Harness of the Lord off the church bulletin board.

Outside the Bible, nothing I have read has had a greater impact on my preparation for the Shofar Global Network than 'The Harness of the Lord'. This pamphlet tells the vision God gave Bill Britton (a minister) in 1960.

It's the story about 2 wild horses captured to be trained for the king's carriage. One submits to the training. The other doesn't. You will have to read it to find out the rest of the story.

And I do highly recommend you read it. I have shared it with countless people over the years, and many have told me how much it impacted their lives because it helped them better understand what God was taking them through. Just do a quick search online for 'The Harness of the Lord Bill Britton', and you will be able to download the PDF.

Later in the fall of 2006, Neil Blake, who my friend Joe had introduced me to when I first visited Moravian Falls and who became a good friend of mine, held a 21-day event called Fulfillment Fest in a big 3,000-person tent in Moravian Falls.

More than 70 speakers from all over the U.S. and even different parts of the world including Israel came to speak, with the central theme being the Hebraic roots of Christianity.

There were a number of signs and wonders during Fulfillment Fest. I watched people get gold fillings in their teeth right in front of my eyes. God showed up in a big way.

Those 21 days were one of the most amazing experiences of my life.

Shortly after that, I was invited to the home of one of the worship leaders from Fulfillment Fest. His name was Joe (a different Joe), and he was from New Zealand. A friend of Joe's was also at his home when I arrived. And they wanted to pray for me.

While praying for me, Joe's friend prophetically said, "There will come a time when people will ask, 'Where's Brett?' And they will say, 'He's in this country. He's in that country. He's in Japan. He's in Germany. He's here. He's there. He's everywhere.'"

I was not quite sure what "He's everywhere" meant at the time. I think I know now. I believe God will have me traveling around the world in connection with the Shofar Global Network. The talks and meetings I take part in during those visits will be broadcast around the world through the Internet. Hence the 'He's everywhere' part.

Our first two years in Moravian Falls were hard, but they were also the most spiritually dynamic years of our lives. In 2007, God sent us on an 11-month business trip to Nevada and Utah. Lots of stories there.

Fast forward. He sent us back to Moravian Falls. Not long after we returned, I wanted to leave for good. The spiritual atmosphere had completely changed for us. It was dark and oppressive. Completely opposite to what we experienced before. We knew we were supposed to come back, but we had no idea why.

And the 11-month business trip God had sent us on had really drained us in every way imaginable. But a lot of deep spiritual lessons learned as well.

As much as I wanted to just get up and leave Moravian Falls, there was no way I was going to do so unless God told me where and when to go. So in the fall of 2008, we were just waiting for God to tell us what to do next.

Then Ron, a good friend of ours, died unexpectedly in November of 2008. Shortly afterwards, his wife Shari called me to come up to her house on a small mountain and to meet with her and her mom, who had flown in to help Shari out.

I knew right after Shari called that she was going to ask us to live in her house and I was supposed to say yes, even before she asked. I told my wife, "Shari is going to ask us to stay in her house and I am supposed to say yes."

Here is the real wild part. Shari's mom, who did not know anything about us at the time, had told Shari previously she shouldn't have a big family staying in her house (for the obvious reasons), as Shari and Ron had a very nice home.

But the night before Shari asked me to come meet with her and her mom, her mom had a dream and God told her mom we were supposed to be living in Shari's home.

So when I got up to Shari's house and sat down at the kitchen table, Shari's mom slaps her hand down on the kitchen table and emphatically asks me, "What do we have to do to get you in this house?" Like she's trying to sell me a used car or something.

I just looked at her and said, "Just ask. And I'm supposed to say yes."

If that is not an example of God ordering our steps, I don't know what is. Keep in mind, I did not want to live in Moravian Falls. I did not like it there. I wanted to leave. But I knew I was not supposed to do anything until God told me what to do.

So I said yes. We ended up staying in Shari's house for three and a half years. It was a beautiful house with 10 acres, on the side of a mountain. However, it was an isolated and lonely time for us as well. And that's when I had to learn to really wait on God and be totally dependent on Him for everything.

In 2009, God had me do a 40-day water-only fast.

However, it started as a three-day fast. By the third day, God prompted me to extend the fast to ten days. Then, toward the end of the ten days, He made it clear to me I was supposed to go for forty days. I basically got tricked into doing a 40-day fast. ;)

For years, I had the impression I was supposed to do a 40-day fast at some point in my life. And I thought, "Well, this must be the time." So I fasted for 40 days. Water only.

There was no way I could have completed a 40-day water-only fast in my own strength.

I can't even begin to describe how hungry I was immediately after the 40 days were up. But to me, being able to go 40 days without food, drinking only water, was proof positive that God had supernaturally sustained me.

Not long after my fast, God prompted me to go into my office and start writing. At first, I had no idea what I was going to write about or where it was going.

Each day when I sat down at my desk, God led me in what to research and write about. Some days I would go for 10 to 12 hours. Other days, four, six, or eight hours. Some days, just a few hours. And on a couple of days, I had nothing to research or write. So I got the day off. ;)

This document eventually grew into over 150 pages covering 18 areas of Mass Deception going on in the world. After I was done, I called it the Shofar Global Manifesto. It took me about a month and a half to research and write.

As I completed each section, God prompted me about what the next one would be. I was continually led by the Spirit every single day during that month and a half. I have not experienced anything like that to that degree before or since.

The main message of the Shofar Global Manifesto turned out to be that there was coming a time when deception would be so all-pervasive and in every facet of society. And the only way NOT to be deceived would be for us to hear God's voice for ourselves, be led by His Spirit, be obedient to His word, and walk in His ways. There was simply no other way.

I was generally familiar with a lot of the material I researched, so there were no big surprises for me. But after I finished, what really stood out to me was how all-encompassing the deception was, and not just in the U.S. but on a global scale too. It was everywhere and it infected everything. And it's worse today. But it's going to get much worse in the future.

When I thought I was done with the Mass Deception sections, God prompted me (like He had with all the other sections) to research and write about two final areas of Mass Deception. Aliens and UFOs.

Which initially I really did not want to do. I just did not want to get into writing about those things and then have it made public.

With that said, I already had a pretty good idea about those subjects from a spiritual perspective from things I had previously read and watched. From my perspective the so-called space 'aliens' were in reality spiritual entities (demons, fallen angels, powers, principalities).

But through my research I did learn some fascinating new things about aliens and UFOs from a spiritual and biblical perspective.

The 18 areas of mass deception, which are grouped into nine pairs, are:

- Media & Entertainment
- Food & Agriculture
- Chemistry & Poisons
- Drugs & Medicine
- Finance & Economics
- Government & Politics
- Technology & Science
- Education and Mind Control
- And finally…UFOs and Aliens

When I finished writing the Shofar Global Manifesto, I had my wife proofread it. Then I asked a good friend, Michael, to review it. After reading it, he told me, "There is no way you wrote that." And then he paused for effect. Then he said, *"Only God could have written that."

He was right. And I responded, "You are right. God led me to write it."

After that, God did not allow me to send the Shofar Global Manifesto to anyone else until nine months later. Why nine months? No idea. After that, I sent it out to a small group of people, and then I sent it out here and there to individuals over the years, as I felt led.

There was a final 13th section in the Shofar Global Manifesto. It was an overview of what the Shofar Global Network was being tasked to do, with self-sustaining communities, cities of refuges, and the word frequency being three of the central themes.

But after I finished writing, God impressed on me that I was to remove that final section from the Manifesto. I have since named that 13th section the Shofar Global Network Overview, and it is a completely separate document from the Shofar Global Manifesto.

Since 2003, God has led me into numerous different situations and business projects involving a single commonality. And that was frequency. Frequency related to water, food, soil, agriculture, health, healing, physical and mental protection, music, worship, spiritual warfare, hearing His voice, and more.

My frequency journey started with a single clue. Around April of 2003, the owner of the liquid nutritional company, that I had mentioned earlier, for some reason, revealed a proprietary secret about how they used frequency in how they manufactured their product. And according to him, it was the key reason why so many people loved the product, got great results, and kept buying it.

This started a breadcrumb trail that God has continued to lead me on for years, with God revealing more and more as I followed His path. Here is one such example…

In 2010, while we were still living in Moravian Falls, God led me into a business project centered on using sonic frequency combined with a unique foliar-based fertilizer spray (applied to the leaves) to increase the growth rates, crop size, and nutrient density of the plants and crops it was applied to.

The results from using the combination of frequency and special nutrients were simply unprecedented. Due to some unique and timely circumstances, I was able to acquire global marketing rights. This product, combined with my business background and unique skillset, had significant potential.

However, as I started reviewing the research documentation and formulation registration documentation, I discovered some significant, intentionally concealed fraud issues. But the odd thing was that God kept pressing me to stay with it. A few months later, He finally released me to terminate my involvement. So I pulled the plug on it.

Afterwards, I was really frustrated and quite confused as to why God would have me get involved in the first place, let alone stay with it so long when there were significant red flags popping up.

And this was not the first time this type of thing had happened either. It had happened quite a few times before. God would lead me into a business project with significant potential that would fall apart because of the company's issues or that I had to simply walk away from for a variety of reasons.

But typically, the issues centered around deceit or mixture with the New Age or the occult.

And it seemed there was a similar repeating pattern too. I had no idea why this kept happening. These were not projects I was pursuing of my own accord. These were projects God was leading me into.

So after I pulled the plug on this sonic frequency growing project, I went outside complaining loudly to God, "Why? Why do you keep having me get involved with these projects that don't work and that I have to pull the plug on, or they just fall apart? Why?"

God immediately spoke right into my spirit and said these exact words, "I've been having you go into the enemy's camp for the last 12 years, to get the different pieces you will need for the Shofar Global Network."

This was one of the few times God has answered me right away.

I wish someone had taken a video of my facial expression and body language. I immediately stopped my whining and just went, "Oh." It instantly made total sense in light of everything God had been walking me through since 1998.

And in fact, it didn't stop there. God has been having me 'go into the enemy's camp' so to speak ever since. He has also been continually preparing and training me, giving me the understanding, knowledge, ideas, insights, experience, and connections I would need for the Shofar Global Network. Not just in the natural, but more importantly, in the spiritual.

A few years ago, Margaret (a good friend I met in 2005 in Moravian Falls when I first visited), who has been praying for me ever since, sent me a word God had given her for me.

"Brett, you don't need more information, you need more revelation."

Ain't that the truth. That was spot on. We all do. And I have kept that in the forefront of my mind ever since. That is really what being Spirit-led is all about. And as Christians, we should all be walking in revelatory insight on a day-to-day basis, as best we can, as God leads.

You may recall the prayer team I mentioned earlier that I met with at the Marketplace Leaders conference in 2005.

One of the words I was given was this, "I just saw you back on the bridge of this ship looking. Which was kind of strange that I saw your eyes extending like two lines, just extending out. God's given you an ability to soar, like to see behind enemy lines."

This word has proven to be true. I can't tell you how many times I have seen and known things that God has given me in the Spirit. There is no possible way I could know in the natural.

For years, I have prayed for wisdom, knowledge, understanding, and discernment. And I have prayed that God would show me "great and mighty things I do not know" (Jeremiah 33:3).

More recently, I have also started asking God for the Spirit of truth, insight, revelation, counsel and might as well.

I encourage you to pray for those as well. But be forewarned. These gifts come with a price, and that price will be unique to each believer, depending on God's purpose for their life and the assignment He has for them.

Remember my friend Neil with the big tent he used for Fulfillment Fest? A few years later, Neil took that same tent to Israel. He had received permission to set it up at the base of the Mount of Olives and do 24/7 worship for about a week and a half. But he was not allowed to do any preaching of the gospel or evangelism.

During his numerous trips to Israel, he met Michael, an Orthodox Jewish businessman, who had made Aliyah to Israel. Michael (different Michael from my friend) was in the process of launching a new project from Israel and needed help.

In 2011, Neil referred me to him because of my business background. It was not a project I wanted to get involved with for a variety of reasons. But for 3 weeks, God kept pressing on me that I was supposed to do it. And He was not letting me off the hook.

I did get the sense it was okay to limit my commitment to working with Michael to 90 days. So after 3 weeks, I finally called Michael back and agreed to work with him on it for 90 days.

By the end of those 90 days, I had done everything I could do on my end to help Michael get it ready to launch. Guess what? It is now the largest Jewish grassroots, pro-Israel advocacy organization in the world, with over 12 million followers from 180 countries around the world.

Keep in mind, I did not want to do it.

While we were living in Moravian Falls, a Jewish Messianic Christian rabbi who was a friend of ours invited us to dinner at his home. After dinner, he told me he believed the Shofar Global Network was an end-time network, and a few other things he felt I needed to know. It was quite sobering. So I did not take any of it lightly.

I'm not sure what 'end-time' network really means. People have been saying we are in the 'end times' for hundreds of years. I am not an alarmist and I am not a prepper. Right before Y2K (if you remember that), I asked my wife if she felt like we were supposed to do anything. She said no. I didn't get the sense we were supposed to do anything either. We didn't even buy an extra bottle of water.

Jesus says, "We will not know the exact day or hour." From my perspective, I just need to keep my lamp full of oil (Holy Spirit), and be listening to the Holy Spirit's leading and be waiting and ready for whatever God has for me to do.

The primary operative words here are 'wait patiently' and 'be obedient.'

The phrase I have been using since I wrote the Shofar Global Manifesto is "preparing for the turbulent times ahead". What that actually means in reality, I don't know because God has not fully shown me. I am on a need-to-know basis. I guess I don't need to fully know right now. And I am good with that.

But I do know turbulent times are coming. And for those with "eyes to see and ears to hear", we do need to be preparing as God leads, not running around in fear like a bunch of clucking barnyard chickens getting chased by the family dog.

And the "turbulent times ahead" are related to the different pieces God has shown me regarding 'self-sustaining communities' and 'cities of refuge' and the word 'frequency.'

Since 2000, I have had countless different people give me different words: encouraging words, words of knowledge and prophetic words.

To be totally transparent, there was a time when all these words over the years actually wore me out. Not because I didn't believe them. It's because I got so tired of wondering when God would finally tell me it was time to launch the Shofar Global Network. And so I got to the place where I really did not want to think about it or hear another prophetic word about it.

But on the other hand, the encouraging words were a continual reminder the Shofar Global Network was of God, and that I needed to keep trusting Him and moving forward.

I say that because God knew where I was at and what I was thinking. A few years back, Margaret told me I needed to fully embrace what God was calling me to do. And I did need to hear that.

"Do not quench the Spirit. Do not despise prophecies, but test everything; hold fast what is good." - 1 Thessalonians 5:19-21 ESV

I did not despise the words I was given, but with how hard it has been going through the process of God preparing me for the Shofar Global Network, I wasn't fully embracing them either.

I had the wrong attitude, nonetheless.

The vast majority of the words I have been given are related to what God has called me to do, the Shofar Global Network, or what He has had me go through to be prepared for it.

And it has definitely NOT been easy. I can honestly say I don't know if I could have stayed the course if I had known upfront everything this journey would entail. But God already knew that and He knew what it would take to keep me on track, and get me ready.

So why I am I telling you all this?

Because I know there are countless other people that God has called to fulfill an assignment as well. You have been created for a reason. God has a real purpose for your existence. But you must continue to walk with Him, step by step, moment by moment, for that assignment to be fully revealed and completed in Him.

I have seen way too many people walk away or give up on the assignment God has called them to complete. Why? Because it is very difficult at times. And it will probably cost you more than you thought it ever would.

I know from personal experience how hard it is to walk this narrow path.

"Many are called, but few are chosen." And those who are "chosen" are chosen because of their faithfulness, their steadfastness, their endurance, their perseverance and their obedience.

So I want to encourage you to stay the course. Don't quit. People are counting on you. People you don't even know. It could be dozens, thousands, or tens of thousands. It could be one single person who goes on to impact millions.

There are countless examples of "nameless" people or "nobodies" throughout history and in the Bible, who behind the scenes changed lives and the course of history.

You have no idea who or what your faithfulness will impact and influence for the Kingdom of God. He is not going to tell you everything up front. You are on a need-to-know basis.

And your family is definitely counting on you as well. Your faithfulness will impact generations of your descendants. Keep in mind, your life is NOT all about you.

So don't give up. Don't faint. Press into God. Always.

When you are weakest, He is strongest. He will give you everything you need to complete your assignment. In its due time. If you are faithful to the end.

From 2005 to 2012, my family and I had MANY amazing God experiences and encounters. A lot of miraculous and supernatural things happened during our time in Moravian Falls. God showed Himself in so many different ways, and He made it very clear to me He also "speaks" in many different ways.

But if I wrote about all of it here, this document would be way too long. I really do need to write a book about all this. But for this document I am going to fast forward to 2012.

In 2012, we moved from Moravian Falls, North Carolina, back to Washington, our home state. Then in the fall of 2016, God abruptly "spit us out" of Washington and sent us to Tennessee, where we stayed for a year. After that He sent us to Colorado, then Spokane, Washington, and then Coeur d'Alene, Idaho. We have literally been "wandering nomads" since 2016.

God was teaching my family and me so much during that time. We were learning to patiently wait, listen to Him over everything else, trust Him no matter the situation, obey Him even when it did not make any sense, and to not lean on our own understanding. We have been told prophetically a number of times that what we were going through was training up our children as well.

Even though it was always in the back of my mind, I had not really given the Shofar Global Network too much serious thought since we left Moravian Falls in 2012. When I did give it some thought, it was typically, "When will this ever happen?"

So it was kind of depressing to think about. I knew without a doubt it was going to happen. But I also knew there was nothing I could do to make it happen either. And I had no idea when it would happen. So I just didn't like to think about it very much.

Then in September 2023, while living in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, I had a dream. In the dream, I was wearing an Apple Watch. The watch rang, and the name of my friend Michael appeared on the watch screen. This was the same Michael who was the first person (after my wife) to read the Shofar Global Manifesto.

Then God spoke into my spirit in a very authoritative voice and said, "IT'S TIME!" That abruptly woke me up. I was a bit rattled, and my first thought was, "Time for what?"

A short time later, on September 27, 2023, God gave me a number things that I wrote down including "The Shofar Global Network is of Me. I will start it when it is time." In addition, "It's time to go to Boise." And "There will be other things I have you do there as well. I will reveal them to you as you go along."

A month later, in October of 2023, God had us move to Meridian, Idaho, just outside the Boise area.

Fast forward to 2024. Margaret had been praying for me and giving me numerous words that God had given her for me since we first met in 2005.

At the beginning of 2024, Margaret (who was now 90 years old) told me that God had assigned her to be my intercessor for the entire year. Based on what she had shared with me previously, I had no doubt that God had given her that assignment. And I got a sense that maybe things were going to finally start shifting.

After she told me that, she began sending me regular emails, sometimes multiple times a day. The words she shared got me thinking seriously about the Shofar Global Network again.

Then on April 23, 2024, she sent me an email that said, "Wait for the word from the prophet. Not me! He will clarify all that you need to know. He will come soon and bring the word to you. Be anxious for nothing but be expecting a call."

On May 24th, 2024, while praying, I told God, "If there was anything in my life that I am holding onto that I shouldn't be, I'll let it go."

The very next day, May 25th, I had a sense that maybe, JUST MAYBE, it was time to launch the Shofar Global Network. So I texted a few friends who were familiar with my journey and asked, "Is it time?" without giving them any context at all.

On May 26th, one of those friends, who is in ministry and has a prophetic gifting, unexpectedly called me. We chatted for a bit, and he prayed for me. The following day, May 27th, he texted me this message:

Here's what I felt the Lord relate to me last night when I prayed for you…

"It is now time for the Shofar International to start in the natural realm though it was birthed in and by the Spirit long ago. The Shofar Network will be a blessing to many and will bless the realm and sphere of influence of Brett as well. Many people will be blessed and reached digitally in many nations.

Now is the time. You (Brett) are released to move forward with all that has been placed upon your heart. Expect many supernatural blessings and signs and wonders to follow you as you move forward today."

I knew immediately in my spirit that he was right, but I had no clue what to do next.

Then on Friday, May 31, 2024, I woke up around 6 a.m. with a strong sense that I was supposed to immediately drive back to Moravian Falls, North Carolina. This was totally out of the blue and unexpected.

We had lived there for over six years between 2005 and 2012, apart from an 11-month extended business trip God sent us on in 2007.

And there was no way I ever wanted to go back to Moravian Falls again, even for a visit.

It was an extremely hard place to live, spiritually speaking. I used to call it the "Spiritual Twilight Zone" and say, "Nobody gets out of here alive" as in "die to yourself."

But I knew without a doubt we were supposed to go and leave right away, even though I had no idea why.

So I called two good friends who I know without a doubt hear from God very clearly to double-check and make sure what I was getting was from God. They both confirmed I was supposed to go. And one of them even was kind enough to send us money us to help with the trip. Now that's confirmation.

After talking with them, I was also getting the sense we were supposed to be in Moravian Falls Sunday morning, in time to go to a specific church's morning service. We were very familiar with the church from our years there, but we did not attend there. I then looked up the Sunday morning service time and it was 10:15am EST.

Oftentimes I get things before my wife, but not always. Other times my wife will get very deep things that resonate and impact me much more than they do her.

Over the 35 years of being married, we have had to learn to walk in that dynamic even though sometimes we have no idea what things mean or where God is leading. We just take the next step that He leads us to take. It has taken years for us as a couple to learn how to walk with God in this manner.

While my wife is still in bed, I tell her, "God wants us to drive out to Moravian Falls, and we are supposed to leave right away, so we can be at this specific church by 10:15 am and it's going to be a 2300-mile drive."

"And it's 34 hours of driving, not including any stops. So in order to make it to 'church on time', we will not be able to stop at a hotel to sleep. We will just have to switch drivers, while the other one sleeps."

30 minutes after I told my wife this, she also knew we were supposed to go to Moravian Falls right away. It makes a huge difference in a marriage when both the husband and wife are hearing directly from God for themselves.

By the time we had finished packing, loading the car, filling up with gas, buying groceries to minimize stops, and got on the road, it was 3 p.m. MOUNTAIN TIME Friday afternoon.

My wife and I, along with our 3 youngest kids who were still at home at the time (we have 8 total), drove non-stop except for gas, rest stops, getting some additional groceries and eating at a restaurant a couple of times. My wife and I would just switch drivers every so often when tired, taking turns driving and sleeping.

On the way out there, I felt led to call a friend of mine, Daren, who is a pastor. He told me that our route would take us right past where he lived in southern Illinois. Daren invited us to stop by for a quick visit, and said he and his wife would take us out for dinner. I felt like we were supposed to, so we did. Plus it was a free dinner.

I have known Daren for over 20 years. He has repeatedly told me he felt like we were supposed to do something together, but he did not know what "it" is. During dinner, I shared with Daren and his wife what had recently happened and that it was time to launch the Shofar Global Network.

After dinner, Daren invited us to tour one of his two churches. The church we visited will seat up to 1,000 people and looks more like a business conference center than a church. And that's by Daren's design.

His church is equipped to broadcast live video and receive it from other locations. He had previously been part of a network that streamed Christian leadership training to local churches, where people gathered in person to attend the sessions. His church can also stream live events globally as well.

After he gave us a tour, Daren offered to "make his church available to help launch the Shofar Global Network." As much as I appreciated the offer, I had no idea of what I would even be launching. But God knew. More on that in a bit.

So after driving from Meridan, Idaho to Moravian Falls, North Carolina, just over 2300 miles, with our brief stops and dinner with Daren, we arrived at the church in Moravian Falls, literally ten minutes before the Sunday 10:15am service started.

To me, that in and of itself is a miracle. Every time I think about it, I am still amazed that God would have us drive 2300 miles (34 hours of drive time alone) to be at that exact church in time for the 10:15 am service, and we made it on time with 10 minutes to spare.

Now here's where things start getting really interesting. As we were walking up to the entryway to the church, a friend of ours we had not seen in 12 years, James, walks up at the same time as we do and says to me, "Hey Brett! God told me to come to church here this morning, just 15 minutes ago, and I don't normally attend here."

We got to talking later. James is an intercessor and part of a large intercessory prayer group, and he is praying for me and the Shofar Global Network. James has already given me a number of words God has given him for me. Talk about God's perfect timing.

Two other couples we are friends with, whom we had also not seen in 12 years, were at the church as well. And neither of them normally attended that church. They just 'happened' to be there that Sunday as well.

In one of the couples, the husband was Michael. It was his name that was on my Apple Watch in my dream, and he was the first person to read my Shofar Global Manifesto after my wife.

How is that for confirmation? But there is more.

We stayed in Moravian Falls for four days with Mark and Elizabeth (not Elizabeth Snelling), who we had become good friends with when we lived there. About 20 minutes before we were leaving to get back on the road, Elizabeth wanted to show my youngest daughter Ariel, who was 13 at the time, how to keep a personal journal.

As Elizabeth opened up one of her old journals, a piece of paper fell out. At the top of the paper was written my name. On the paper her husband, Mark, had listed the different areas of the Shofar Global Network where he felt he could be involved, based on what we had talked about years ago.

Mark had written those notes 15 years earlier, when we lived there. What are the chances that piece of paper would just happen to fall out of an old journal, right before we left? But God.

After leaving Moravian Falls, we drove to Virginia to visit Frank and Yuani, who I mentioned earlier when Frank gave me the book, The Final Quest, which was one of the breadcrumbs that God used to lead us to moving to Moravian Falls.

Then we drove on to Ohio and then Montana for 2 different rugby tournaments that my youngest sons played in. Six of our 8 kids play rugby. I played and coached. Then we felt led to go to Spokane, Washington, our hometown, rather than go back to Meridian, Idaho, right away.

While in Spokane, I felt like I was supposed to get the two shofars I had been given years earlier out of storage. Without knowing I had just gotten the shofars out of storage, Margaret emailed me to ask if I could send her a picture of the one shofar she knew about. The one that Carla Reed's friend, Ellen, had given me in 2005.

I told her I had just gotten it out of storage. I took a picture of it and sent it to her. Margaret was not aware of the other shofar I had been given. Around 1999, while we were living in Alaska, a native Eskimo Christian man gave me my first shofar. He was a friend of my mom's.

I had no idea why he gave it to me or even what it was called at the time. He simply felt led to give it to me. He gave me that shofar five years before God gave me the name Shofar Global Network, six years before I was given the second shofar, and ten years before God had me write the Shofar Global Manifesto.

While we were in Spokane, I felt I should call Rich Marshall, the author of God@Work, and tell him that it was time for me to launch the Shofar Global Network. We had spoken several times over the years since I first read his book. So I called and gave him a quick update.

Rich told me he had been seeing in the Spirit the words "business network" on buildings all over the world. Rich then told me that he believed I was being called to carry out what he was seeing in the Spirit.

Then the most unexpected thing happened.

Rich said, "*I am rubber stamping what you are doing, and anyone can call me and I will tell them, I am rubber stamping the Shofar Global Network." A*nd then he prayed for me.

To have the person whose book completely changed the trajectory of my entire life say that to me was incredibly powerful and totally unexpected.

While in Spokane, we visited Carla Reed two times. She messaged several people she knew we were supposed to meet. We did and we have become friends with them as well. There are a LOT of additional stories in there since we met them. But those will have to be for "my book". ;)

So after a totally unexpected whirlwind 8-week, 7,000-mile road trip confirming it was time to launch the Shofar Global Network, we arrived back in Meridian, ID.

Shortly after getting back to Meridian, at the end of July 2024, I did a Zoom meeting with Os Hillman, who is a world thought leader in the 'Faith in the Marketplace' movement. I shared "My Shofar Global Journey" during that meeting.

From Os Hillman…

"In my 20 years of hosting webinars, I've seen many ways to captivate an audience—through flashy graphics or enticing giveaways. But Brett took a different approach. He spoke from the heart, sharing his personal journey and profound spiritual insights.

I was initially concerned that such a straightforward presentation might not hold everyone's attention. However, after just 20 minutes, I realized how wrong I was. For the entire hour, only one participant left the call, which is almost unheard of in webinar settings.

After the session, Brett and I discussed the remarkable response. I told him, 'Brett, that was a miracle! It's rare for anyone to stay engaged with a talk for a full hour.'

Reflecting on it, I believe the reason for the high engagement is Brett's deeply personal account of his journey with God. His story, which includes the birth of the Shofar Global Network and the challenges he faced before launching it, is both moving and inspiring.

Brett's message is a powerful testimony of growth and purpose that I believe will resonate with you and others. I also encourage you to explore how you might get involved with the Shofar Global Network."

You can watch the recording of our Zoom meeting here.

After we left Spokane to head back to Meridian, ID, our good friend Carla Reed messaged me that Meri Crouley would be speaking at a small church in Boise, ID, on August 4th, 2024. We had initially met Meri Crouley back in 2006, when she was a speaker at Fulfillment Fest.

I got the sense this was not some random coincidence and we were supposed to go. So we did. There were several people at this church that Carla Reed had told they needed to meet me as well.

During the service, Meri called me up to the front of the church to share a little bit about what God was doing in our lives with the Shofar Global Network.

As I was walking up to speak, the time was 12:12, which has been a significant time for our family for years, as it represents two things to us: "It's Time" and Romans 12:12, "Rejoice in hope, be patient in tribulation, be constant in prayer."

Meri then called up my wife and gave us this word:

"Brett and Michelle, the Shofar International," says the Lord, "is now being launched on this date. This is your launching out into the deep. This is your launching pad." And the Lord said, "You're going to be glad because I know how bad it's been."

"But let me tell you," the Lord says, "thank you for saying yes because of what you did and you passed the test. Now for you the word is blessed. After the tenth test, Abraham was blessed.

Now everything you touch will turn to gold. It's going to be a hundredfold ROI because you're the apple of my eye."

"And everything you thought that what happened before," the Lord said, "Your ceiling will now be your floor. You ain't seen nothing yet. Get ready. It's time to cast the net."

"This Shofar International Network," says the Lord, "will be a network that will be a global network. The communication is going to bring in sanctification and demonstration for this nation. And there's going to be a team of people, and it's going to encompass all things, even communities, so many different things."

"It's not about being a prepper," says the Lord. "It's not about any of that stuff. But remember, when they went out."

The Lord said, "I provided for them even in the wilderness. Remember? A cloud by day, a pillar of fire by night, and their shoes didn't wear out."

"I am going to bring in such imagination," God said, " for the people of this very nation and the world. The enemy can only copy." But God said, "My people will be the most creative people in the world. And the creations that are going to come forth."

So the Lord said, "Raise your hand because I'm giving you a scroll. This is a scroll for heaven from the blueprint of how this needs to be rolled out. And I will bring people to you that will hold up your arms like a Moses, so to speak," says the Lord.

"You're being called to lead a people group into the promises, and into the promised land," says the Lord. "This is why you had to be so tested in the fires, that because so many people start getting such ego edging God out."

That the Lord said, "Pride comes before a fall and then I can't use them, because they start taking ownership of what happens. And so many people have had to go through extreme tests, extreme messes, extreme stuff in order to get everything burned out of them that could try to literally bring forth this leaven."

But God said, "This is an open heaven." And so now the Lord says, "I bless you. I keep you. My face shines upon you and is gracious to you. I lift up my countenance and grant you my shalom and my peace. Enter thou into the courts, into the kingdom for such a time as this, and my peace."

I have never had anything in my life have so many confirmations. And in such a short period too. God definitely confirmed without a doubt that it was time to launch the Shofar Global Network.

However, there was ONE key MISSING from the Shofar Global Network that I didn't know was missing. And the backstory shows how God put this all together in a way only He could.

In February 2022, through a string of serendipitous events that only God could have orchestrated, He led Greg Moyer to want to meet with me. Greg contacted me because he was working on a personal project, and because of my background he was wanting to find out if I would help him get it off the ground.

In our second Zoom meeting, Greg shared with me that during his 25 years in Silicon Valley he had developed a practical framework for being creative, inventive and innovative. And he had been trying to put together a training program for teaching his framework over the previous 4 years, and it had been the hardest thing he had ever done.

Greg's journey started shortly after he graduated from high school and was on staff with one of the largest Christian youth ministries in America at the time.

A Christian mentor on staff at the ministry shared a technique with Greg that was used by Christian monks during the pre-Renaissance period for activating their imaginations to better meditate on Scripture to make it more applicable in their lives.

A number of years later, Greg moved to Silicon Valley to start a business during Steve Jobs' heyday. One night, Greg was stuck on coming up with ideas for an important business presentation the following day. So he wondered what would happen if he tried this "Monk Method" for coming up with some ideas for his presentation.

Not only did it work, but it was the catalyst for Greg studying the world's greatest creators, inventors and innovators throughout history to discover what made them so prolific in generating their life-changing ideas and bringing them to fruition.

Through his research, Greg identified 29 common attributes and 7 thinking and doing habits that they all used knowingly or unknowingly. Greg then organized these into an Innovation Framework that is practical and repeatable and that anyone can follow and do. You just need to know the process and then apply it.

Greg also verified with modern science that the thinking and doing habits were based on how our brains are naturally wired (i.e. God-created) to be creative, inventive and innovative.

Greg then went on to apply his Innovation Framework to his own businesses. He came up with nine inventions of his own, developed ten innovations for his industry, and helped six of his clients generate more than $6 billion in new revenue.

Greg proved his Innovation Framework in the highly competitive arena of Silicon Valley.

After sharing his Innovation Framework and journey with me, Greg told me he now believed it was his life purpose to bring it to the world.

After Greg was done explaining his Innovation Framework to me, I told him, "Greg, you are not going to believe this, but this is exactly what God walked me through when I became a pioneer in remote sales and one of the top people in the world in my niche in just a few short years while I was living in Alaska. I just had no idea that it was a repeatable framework. I had always thought it was a one-off."

And I knew right away I was supposed to help him bring it to the world.

But my experience had been entirely different from Greg's. I had been totally Spirit-led. While Greg had researched and studied to identify what it took to be creative, innovative and inventive and then developed a practical framework that anyone could apply, regardless of their spiritual beliefs.

And Greg did not come up with some pie-in-the-sky, academic theory. He went on to prove it in the hyper-competitive, corporate marketplace out of Silicon Valley.

My personal experience showed me this process is real and it works. God can supernaturally walk anyone through a natural process without them knowing anything about it. They just have to be listening to Him and be obedient to His leading.

I write more about how to recognize these patterns in your life in my Spirit-Led Co-Creation Pathway document.

God has hard-wired you for creativity. And Greg's Innovation Framework gives you the roadmap for being creative, inventive and innovative and becoming a catalyst for generating life-changing ideas and bringing them to fruition for Kingdom purposes.

In the early fall of 2024, after I shared Greg's Innovation Framework with Os Hillman, Os asked me if there was a way to create a "stained glass" version, meaning a version for Christians. When I mentioned this to Greg, he said, "Absolutely, the entire framework was supported by biblical principles and Scripture."

Remember my pastor friend, Daren, who offered his church to launch the Shofar Global Network. And I had NO idea what I was going to be launching?

We ended up holding 3 live events there. We recorded them, edited the video, and put together a FREE training program called Co-Creating with GOD: Spirit-Led Innovation.

Co-Creating with GOD: Spirit-Led Innovation teaches Spirit-led believers how to apply a proven, practical, repeatable Innovation Framework for being creative, innovative and inventive that, when combined with God's revelatory insight, will generate God-given, life-changing ideas for Kingdom purposes.

Combining Greg's proven, practical 7i Innovation Framework that works in the natural with God's revelatory insight that goes far beyond man's knowledge or understanding.

It will not only be a catalyst for generating new life-changing, great ideas, but it can also be used as a witness in the secular and Christian marketplace by having a positive impact on many of the world's biggest problems.

The Co-Creating with GOD: Spirit-Led Innovation training will give Spirit-led Christians globally a shared understanding and a foundation for Co-Creating with God.

We will also use this proven, practical Innovation Framework, combined with revelatory insight, to develop all kinds of new life-changing ideas, creations, inventions, and innovations.

Spirit-led believers can bring these ideas to fruition as technologies, products, services, businesses, and ministries that help solve some of the biggest problems and address the biggest challenges in the world today, while serving God's purposes.

We will bring these ideas and business projects to market through the Shofar Global Network or help facilitate that process. This includes business incubation, business development, startups, funding, partnerships, and joint ventures at local, national, regional, and global levels.

These initiatives are part of the network's mandate to create wealth for Kingdom purposes, to help facilitate a wealth transfer from the world for God's purposes.

With our upcoming Co-Creating with GOD: Advisor Certification training program, CERTIFIED Advisors will be able to advise business leaders, having a godly influence in both the secular and Christian marketplace, much like Joseph and Daniel, who through God's revelatory insight were trusted advisors and problem-solvers in their time.

This is one area you definitely to operate f from a 'Spirt of Counsel".

Our world is in dire need of solutions to man-made problems that only God can fix. Our world is desperately in need of not just good ideas, but God's ideas. Just one God-given idea can positively impact the entire world.

Co-Creating with GOD: Spirit-Led Innovation is the tip of the spear for bringing what the Shofar Global Network is being tasked with into reality. It will be the catalyst for funding all types of different projects for God's purposes.

A key component of the Shofar Global Network's mandates is to give the Co-Creating with GOD: Spirit-Led Innovation training away for FREE globally.

With the Shofar Global Network, my vision is to create and connect a global network of like-minded, Spirit-led believers who will Co-Create with God.

The Shofar Global Network will be a catalyst for coming up with all kinds of life-changing ideas for business, ministry, life or whatever God leads them into. These ideas will positively impact the world for God's purposes.

With God, the possibilities are infinite.

"Call to me and I will answer you, and will tell you great and hidden things that you have not known." – Jeremiah 33:3

P.S. I cannot take credit for writing the Shofar documents. God architected the circumstances in my life to make them a reality. He led me in real time as I was writing. Having Him guide me through that process was a life-changing experience. I am eternally grateful for what He has done in my life.

P.P.S. If you'd like to know more about me, I've included a brief account below of how God began revealing the Shofar Global Network vision and preparing me for it. SHOFAR GLOBAL NETWORK

Spirit-led collaboration for Kingdom purposes.

About Brett Rademacher

The Shofar Global Network vision began in 1996 while I was driving down a highway in Texas. God told me, "You are going to have a global marketing organization involving many people using cutting edge technology."

At the time, I didn't realize God was speaking to me. I thought it was just a random thought. I wasn't doing anything global, and I had no technological background. I had no idea where those words would lead.

In 1998, while living in Alaska, God gave me ideas and a business model that would eventually help me become a pioneer in Internet-based remote sales and one of the best in the world in my niche.

At the end of 2000, while reading God@Work by Rich Marshall, I had an encounter with God that lasted several weeks. During that time, He began giving me the initial pieces of a global Christian business network. That network was not the Shofar Global Network. It was basically a training run that helped prepare me for what would come later.

God also made it very clear that I was to be bold about my faith in the marketplace, even when it made me look foolish. I knew this would change everything about my life. A short time later, God told me, "Go to church and get anointed with oil for business." I promptly did, and just about everything I was working on took off like a rocket ship. But that was just the beginning.

In 2003, I met a Christian minister with a prophetic gifting at an airport in Hawaii. A few months later, she contacted me with a word God had given her for me. The short version was, "You're going to come into some times of being abased. Don't fight it or it will take longer. I have purposed it because I have many plans for you and much for you to do."

The years since then have included success, setbacks, and many challenging experiences. God has used those experiences to deepen my spiritual understanding and prepare me for the Shofar Global Network. I've had to learn to listen, trust Him, and follow His leading, even when it was hard and I couldn't see what was ahead.

Over time, He's given me a deeper understanding of those words from 1996. I've come to realize they meant something very different from what I originally thought.

The vision God has given me for the Shofar Global Network is to connect like-minded, Spirit-led believers around the world, providing information, training, and resources to help them prepare for turbulent times and do what God is calling them to do.
