Day 2 Workbook - Message Clarity

Extracting Your God-Given Assignment

---

How to Use This Workbook

This is not an exercise in creativity. It is an exercise in discernment.

Do not aim for perfection. Aim for honesty.

What you write here does not need to be final, it just needs to be true.

---

1. What Is the Revelation God Has Entrusted to Me?

Revelation is not information. It is something God has taught you through experience, process, or obedience.

Often, it came through:

- struggle
- breakthrough
- loss
- faithfulness over time

Prompt:

- What truth did God have to teach me personally before I could teach others?
- What insight do I now carry that I did not have before this season?

Reflection Space:

---

---

---

---

---

2. What Burden Do I Carry for Others?

A burden is not a preference. It is something that moves you, troubles you, and refuses to leave you alone.

It often shows up as:

- frustration with the status quo
- compassion for a specific group
- grief over patterns you keep seeing

Prompt:

- What breaks my heart repeatedly?
- What problem do I feel unusually responsible for?
- Who do I think about when I pray?

Reflection Space:

---

---

---

---

---

3. What Transformation Can I Help Create?

Calling is always connected to change.

You are not called to help people generally. You are called to take people from somewhere to somewhere.

Prompt:

- Where are people stuck when they come to me?

- What becomes possible for them after engaging with my message?
- What change do I know how to walk people through?

Reflection Space:

---

---

---

---

---

4. What Problem Is My Message Actually Solving?

Messages gain clarity when they are anchored to real problems, not abstract ideas.

This is not about exaggeration. It is about focus.

Prompt:

- What pain, confusion, or limitation does my message address?
- What problem would remain if my message did not exist?
- Who feels this problem most deeply?

Reflection Space:

---

---

---

---

---

5. First Draft of My Framework

(Problem → Revelation → Process → Promise)

This is not your final framework. It is your first faithful articulation.

Keep it simple. Clarity grows through refinement.

---

The Problem

What my people are currently stuck in:

---

---

---

---

The Revelation

The insight, truth, or perspective that unlocks change:

---

---

---

---

The Process

The steps, stages, or journey that creates transformation:

---

---

---

---

The Promise

The outcome my people experience on the other side:

---

---

---

---

---

Closing Reflection

Take a moment of quiet.

Then write one sentence in response to this question:

If I were fully faithful to this assignment, what would need to change about how I show up?

Reflection Space:

---

---

---

---

Final Note

What you've written today is not random nor accidental. It is the beginning of structure.

Tomorrow, we will look at how this becomes:

- a book
- a course
- a program
- or a clear teaching pathway

For now, honour what has surfaced.

Clarity has been entrusted to you.
