**January 4, 2025 – National Release** — Tanawah Downing, a Navy Special Operations veteran and passionate civil rights advocate, is leading a groundbreaking legal campaign to challenge corruption within the American legal system. Armed with 500,000 affidavits and a commitment to justice, Downing's "We Shall Be Free" tour is a historic effort to hold the judicial system accountable, particularly at the highest levels of the U.S. Supreme Court.

In a series of unprecedented legal actions, Downing has filed lawsuits in several states, addressing the wrongful convictions of hundreds of thousands of Americans. His legal strategy focuses on fighting against the deprivation of rights under the color of law—a concept that refers to actions taken by government officials that violate citizens' constitutional rights while they are performing their official duties.

"We are at a critical juncture in the fight for justice in this country," Downing declared. "The corrupt practices within the judicial system have affected the lives of countless individuals. It is time for those who have been wronged to have their voices heard, and for those who have perpetuated these injustices to be held accountable."

The heart of Downing's legal battle centers on an investigation into systemic corruption at the highest echelons of the U.S. Supreme Court. With nearly half a million affidavits submitted, Downing aims to expose the numerous violations of constitutional rights that have led to wrongful convictions and the erosion of trust in the judicial system.

The scale of this effort is unprecedented—500,000 affidavits from across the country represent the voices of individuals who have been harmed by judicial misconduct. Downing's legal team is bringing these cases before the courts, demanding that the injustices be rectified and the victims be given a fair and just path to exoneration.

“We shall be free from a system that has failed to protect the rights of its citizens. We shall be free from a corrupt system that perpetuates racial, economic, and social injustice,” Downing stated. “This is a fight for the soul of our nation. We will not rest until justice is served.”
