The Relationship
REJUVENATOR

Introduction

Good on you! You've come across a great, well-researched and practical resource used in relationship therapy. Seeking additional tools and strategies to repair, build and maintain a thriving and harmonious marriage requires time and effort – so here it is!

Who has the time to trawl through thousands of pages to discover useful tips that are genuinely effective? With the daily pressures of work, chores, handheld screens and family responsibilities, it's easy to ignore nurturing your relationship. We often take our partner and relationship for granted, whereas both should be a priority as the foundation of a fulfilling and happy lifestyle.

This succinct book is designed to remind couples about the significance of fostering a healthy relationship. It provides vital relationship support to help you build and nurture a successful and healthy relationship through each and every day of your togetherness.

Before you read this interesting and handy reference, it is imperative that you begin with the intention to give 110%. This is particularly challenging if we feel it isn't or won't be reciprocated. It's a bonus if you're both approaching the relationship with a similar outlook and attitude. If not, consider yourself the one setting the example who will inevitably drive incredible change with no regrets, no matter the outcome.

The strategies discussed in this book are influenced by some inspiring academics. These include Dr Gary Chapman, Dr Caroline Leaf, the teams from Prepare/Enrich and The Gottman Institute, and Dr Sue Johnson, a pioneer in Emotionally Focussed Therapy. Important Pearls of Wisdom have also touched this book from wise couples in my family - especially my parents - and couples in the local community. I thank these people who've lasted the distance for inspiring me with their genuine kindness towards one another, tenacity and legacy.

Enjoy this Relationship Rejuvenator!

100 conversation starters for couples

An essential part of a thriving relationship is basic communication. You might still be chatting regularly until the wee hours of the morning, or possibly stuck for anything meaningful to say to each other. Here is a handy list of conversation starters which you and your partner can both try. Have fun with them, especially if you've just met. Try and answer for your loved one if you've been together forever. How much do you really know about each other?

1. If you didn't have to worry about earning money, what would you most likely do for the rest of your life?
2. What is one of your greatest fears?
3. What do you consider your greatest strengths?
4. If you could meet one celebrity or significant person in history, who would it be?

'I VERSUS WE' COMMUNICATION PRACTISE WORKSHEET

The following practise worksheet is a fantastic helper to guide you in communicating effectively when you seek change. Unintentionally launching into the attack using language such as: "You always..." "You never..." usually doesn't end well. (Fellas may want to do a quick online search for feeling words for this one – but it'll be worth it! 😊)

PARTNER 1:

I would feel/I feel _____

when _____

So I would like it if _____

Is that okay?

PARTNER 2:

I would feel/I feel _____

when _____

So I would like it if _____

Is that okay?

Simple ways to 'spouse it up'!

You can 'spouse it up' without leaving the house! When the initial oxytocin rush wears off and the daily grind overtakes, this is no excuse not to include simple things that can spice up your relationship. Tick off these little 'to dos' to incorporate into your daily life to maintain an intimate and romantic relationship with your partner.

SAVE SOME OF YOUR BEST FOR HOME

You both had a long and tiring day, or maybe one hell of a week. You arrive home irritable and grumpy, and need someone to release your angst upon. Who will you take it out on?

Commonly, your partner! If you see a friend standing outside the door, you can manage to be polite, even if you're feeling annoyed, so why not do the same for your partner? Saving some of your outside niceness for home is respectful and appreciated. You both deserve an attentive listening ear, or the understanding that sometimes you just need a little time on your own.

HOLD HANDS

Why not hold hands while watching TV? While walking the dog? A simple brush or interlocking of your hands is reassuring and represents a simple reminder of love. It matters! A 'no strings attached' display of affection is a simple way to get closer to your partner, irrespective of how small a gesture it seems.

DATE AT HOME

A romantic meal for two isn't usually associated with home. But why not make it romantic? Creating a 'date night' atmosphere at home is not difficult to do. Plan a date at home once your children are asleep. Prepare a new recipe, light some candles, dress up, and enjoy the romantic scene.

SURPRISE YOUR PARTNER

Don't wait for a special date or occasion to do something fabulous or surprise your partner. Cook your wife's favourite dish or buy your husband a gift. Do it 'just because'! Little gestures can go a long way to show how much you truly care.

BE A MASTER NOT A DISASTER

Relationship research from The Gottman Institute says that genuine kindness and respect could well predict the outcome of your relationship. Commit to being attuned and attentive when your partner makes a 'bid' to connect with you in the smallest ways. This could be seeking your interest in an article they found online, a beautiful bird outside, the footy scores, or your child's latest accomplishment. Regularly ignoring these 'bids' slowly erodes your emotional connection.

SAYING "I LOVE YOU" IS NOT A HARD THING TO DO, AS LONG AS YOU MEAN IT

Regularly hearing "I love you" is reassuring and lights up our brain! Really! It also keeps the emotional connection alive.

FIND OUT THEIR LOVE LANGUAGE

You may well be trying to make your partner feel loved, but inadvertently using a tactic that only you enjoy! Pause a moment to wonder what really makes your partner feel loved. There are some great resources to do this online including my tutorial on the Five Love Languages found at www.relationshiprejuvenator.com.

45 fabulous date ideas!

So you've been dating at home and it's time to get outside? The following are 45 awesome ways you and your sweetheart can get out and have a good time. Maybe it's time for a holiday? Or just impress your partner with your adaptation of the ideas below!

1. RELATIONSHIP MONUMENT TOUR

Make a day trip of all the monumental places in your neighbourhood that mean something to both of you.

2. ROLLER BLADING

You're never too old to enjoy the freedom of skating - the wind whooshing past your nose as you enjoy one of the most exhilarating ways to spend time outdoors!

3. GET CULTURED

Find a random local act or performance that you probably didn't even know was happening and snag the cheapest seats.

4. BOWLING

Any day will do! You'll probably find this one near you! Done that? Go to a pinball arcade or indoor rock climbing.

5. GET ARTSY

Take this opportunity to finally go to the latest exhibition everyone is talking about. There are more galleries around than you think!

6. INDULGE

Enjoy tranquil healing therapy through a couple's massage to relax and unwind whilst enjoying the benefits of restoration. Make sure you find that retreat centre that includes strawberries and champagne.

7. GO ON A SHOPPING MISSION

Whether you are a goodwill shopper or top end spender, use a rainy day to buy something fashionably different and then have a fashion show for your partner.

8. MEMORY LANE

Take out old pictures of when you were kids and share stories while looking through them with your partner.

9. SWIM LESSONS

Do you and your partner know how to swim? Take an adult swimming lesson together.

10. LAZY CAFE AFTERNOON

Find a new one or head to your fave. Watch the people as you sip toasty warm beverages or frappés in summer! Bring a board game or a book, and chill.

11. MEDITATE

Find a meditation centre (many have free classes), or arrange prayerful reflection at your local church to spend some time in silence together.

12. INDOOR PICNIC

Place a mat on your verandah and enjoy a glass of wine as you both watch the rain pour down.

13. ROAD TRIP

Enjoy a long drive with your favourite music playing in the background. Make it a sing-along, or use the conversation starters for an interesting chat!

14. LEARN TO DRAW

Take a class together. Maybe try being a figure model for one another.

15. WALK IN THE PARK

There's usually one somewhere! Download a list of beautiful walks and meander your way down it.

16. PLAY PHOTOGRAPHER

Take a photography class together – or get out and have a 'best selfie' competition.

17. ONE-DAY BOOK CLUB

Pick a book to snuggle up and read together, then talk about it. OK, maybe a short story if you're not a fast reader.

18. MOVIE DATES

You could use the Oscars list to get started if you have trouble with inspiration for a home couch event. Don't forget the popcorn! Why not head out to a new cinema you haven't been to?

19. BOARD GAMES

Make it a board game day, or try it with a twist.

20. COOK AN AMAZING MEAL TOGETHER

Now is a great time to try something new in the kitchen. Maybe you could even try a cooking class together?

21. WRITE A LOVE LETTER TO YOUR SWEETHEART

Better yet, write two: one to open tonight, and one to open a year from now.

22. LEARN SOMETHING NEW TOGETHER

Sign up for an art class, learn a new language together or take dance lessons. Use a calendar to plot out free and cheap events throughout the year so you can keep on exploring together.

23. POP IT

Blow up a balloon for each year you've been together and put a piece of paper in each one with something nice about your sweetheart.

24. GO OUT TO DESSERT INSTEAD OF DINNER

This is a great way to have time out whilst going easy on the budget.

25. GO OUT TO BREAKFAST INSTEAD OF DINNER

It is much lighter on the wallet and is a great way to start off your day. Alternatively make breakfast in bed.

26. GO STARGAZING WITH A BLANKET

Get takeaway food from your favourite restaurant or pack a picnic. Find the planets and constellations with a sky app.

27. SERVE

Spend your special day donating time together to a charity or cause you both respect.

28. MAKE A TIME CAPSULE

Put in memorabilia and notes to your future selves. Set intentions and dreams for your future and set it somewhere where it won't be disturbed for the next year (or five years).

29. DINNER AT HOME

Cook each other's favourite meals together. Don't forget to dress up, light candles, pour beverages, play music and of course, enjoy dessert!

30. WINE CAPSULE

Find a 'happy hour' wine tasting and buy a special bottle of wine. Spend the time writing intentions for the coming year and seal them away with the bottle of wine to open on your next anniversary.

31. SING IT

Hire a karaoke setup, and sing your sweetheart's favourite songs.

32. MODERN MIX TAPE

Create a playlist online of all the songs that remind you of your time together and have a dance party at home.

33. PROGRESSIVE DINNER OUT

Have appetisers at one restaurant, dinner at another and dessert at the last.

34. RECREATE YOUR FAVOURITE DATES

Spare no detail, remember what you wore, where you were and how you ended your night. You each get to pick one. See how your memories can mesh together.

35. MAP IT OUT

Record your shared travels on a map with pins or markers. Add a colour for your future travel plans and dreams.

36. BAKE AN ANNIVERSARY CAKE TOGETHER

Test out a new recipe each year.

37. MAKE A MOVIE

Record a video using your web-cam or mobile phone telling your partner what you appreciate about them. Add to it each year.

38. CREATE AN ONLINE COLLAGE

Take pictures of one another and make some fun collages on an app. This can work well when you are far apart on your anniversary.

39. PAINT OR DRAW PICTURES OF ONE ANOTHER

Hey, you might not be an artist, but let me tell you, it will be a time of laughter and fun – that's for sure!

40. DRESS YOU UP

Go to a second-hand shop and pick out an outfit for each other. Don't be shy, be adventurous and try whatever your partner brings you.

41. HAVE A ROMANTIC STAYCATION

Be homebodies at home, but with an extra touch of romance. Don't want the hassle of making reservations or travel arrangements? Maybe consider an off-site babysitter.

42. STAND UP AND PADDLE BOARD YOUR WAY TO LUNCH

Make yourselves ravenous by exerting energy in this fun way together, ending up at your favourite waterfront café or restaurant.

43. ESCAPE

Venture to one of the most beautiful landmarks in your area. Take your pick from the dozens of romantic hideaways such as bubble tents or amongst the tree tops.

44. NUMBER IT

If this is your tenth anniversary, give a ten minute massage (or ten single minute massages). Be thoughtful and fun. Make a game out of it and see who can come up with the most creative number-themed gift.

45. START YOUR BUCKET LIST

Spend the evening creating a shared bucket list of dreams you share. Keep your list handy so you can cross things off (and add to it) for years to come.

Where are you going? Where's your relationship going?

Wouldn't it be great if you and your partner could easily say, "We're on the same page". What does that term mean to you? Whilst the most beautiful partnerships provide support during tough times, neither individual is expected to continually 'prop up' their spouse to fulfil the others' dreams. Now is a good time to evaluate what you're seeking, to articulate these goals with clarity and to join forces with your partner. Complete these questions below to find out more about each other.

1. What sort of person do you aspire to be?
2. How would you like to be remembered? What would you like to be remembered for?
3. If I were being the person that I want to be, what would I be doing? How would I sound? What would I be thinking?
4. Think of some of the most valued people you have had contact with. Identify their positive behaviour. Do you possess these in your repertoire?

5. How do you express your creativity?

6. What do you know now that you didn't know when you began your adult journey? How can you unleash that knowledge for maximum benefit now and in the future?

7. Have you had any moments of spiritual awareness that have revealed your true talents? Are you able to use them frequently in your work to ensure a life of zest, doing what you do best?

COUPLE GOAL SETTING

You can now each complete this simple pro forma and compare notes:

PARTNER 1:

PARTNER 2:

PERSONAL GOALS	1.	1.
	2.	2.
	3.	3.
COUPLE GOALS	1.	1.
	2.	2.
	3.	3.
FAMILY GOALS	1.	1.
	2.	2.
	3.	3.

1. Do any of your partner's goals surprise you?
2. Which goals are most important to you right now?
3. What are the current issues surrounding these goals?
4. How do your partner's goals complement or compete with yours?
5. How can you each contribute to achieving them?
6. What is the first small step to making these goals a reality?

How to determine if you need marriage counselling

Relationship therapy has the power to transform lives! Marriage counselling provides support to couples seeking to improve their understanding and intimacy. The focus is less about the individuals and more about the 'dance' of the relationship. Each person is still required to concentrate on self-awareness and self-improvement.

Couples seek marriage counselling for several reasons, from communication problems to infidelity and sexual dissatisfaction. Some just want to take their relationship to a greater emotional, attentive and intimate level. For the couples most devitalised, the more time passes, the more difficult it can be to repair a relationship from "never again" moments where we suffer relationship injuries and despair. Below are the signs to determine if you need relationship therapy or marriage counselling as soon as possible:

1. YOU ARE TALKING BUT IT IS ALWAYS NEGATIVE

Negative conversations can involve anything that leaves the other feeling ashamed, judged, insecure, disregarded or wanting to withdraw from the conversation.

2. YOU ARE FRIGHTENED TO TALK

You probably need marriage counselling when you are afraid to even bring up an issue. This can include anything such as issues regarding money, sex or even irritating habits. A relationship therapist can facilitate unveiling the emotions behind the behaviours that inhibit you being able to share freely.

3. WHEN YOU ARE LIVING SEPARATE LIVES

I often hear, "It feels we're more like room-mates." The relationship is not necessarily in trouble because you don't do everything together. Striving toward a healthy balance of independence and togetherness fosters open communication and intimacy.

4. WHEN YOU KEEP ARGUING OVER SIMPLE THINGS

We all have triggers or raw spots. Triggers are things which make you furious. This can involve issues such as who does the laundry, or the most minuscule events that can send you into a sudden spin! Ever been completely shocked that the smallest comment has sent your partner to the moon and back in rage? You probably don't understand why, and it's worth exploring these to ensure the vicious cycle ends.

5. YOU ADMIRE OTHER COUPLES WHO ARE BEAUTIFULLY CONNECTED.

We've all admired couples who can communicate with their eyes, compliment each other when others are around and just basically complement their spouse! Yes, you can have what "they" have!

6. WHEN YOU HAVE DISCOVERED INFIDELITY

Repairing the relationship after an affair can still be an option! If both partners are open to investigating healing and reconnecting, have hope that it can happen.

There are many other behaviours that can undermine a relationship. A good marriage counsellor can assist you unveil the emotions behind these raw spots and ultimately rejuvenate your relationship.

How to find the best Relationship Therapist

If your relationship lacks lustre or is on the verge of falling apart, be courageous and do what it takes to have no regrets!

Finding a therapist isn't difficult these days. We have access like never before to therapists either face-to-face, online, FaceTime, over the telephone, websites and even apps that facilitate great personalised communication.

Check the therapist is affiliated with a recognised counselling or psychology association.

What is imperative – a trusted therapeutic relationship with your counsellor so that in time, you're both prepared to take risks and reveal your challenges. You may want to consider these ideas on how to find a perfect marriage counsellor:

WORD OF MOUTH

Yes, you can get the best marriage therapist from word of mouth. Surely, one of your mates has known someone who can guide you through the process. After your first meeting, you still get to determine if you can progress successfully with this person or not. Remember, you have to trust your counsellor, so if you have any reservations after your first meeting, you should seek another one. Whilst I'm frequently referred by clients' friends, each couple has different needs in order to feel connected and comfortable.

ADVERTISING

See an ad that features a certified relationship specialist? Send them an email or call them to gauge their credentials, warmth and responsiveness!

ONLINE OPTIONS

There are many resources available to support you via websites and apps that offer marriage counselling. However, research their credibility. A reliable option will provide you with the name of the person that you will be dealing with, the main office location, the contact numbers and of course, an official website. From my personal experience, face-to-face provides the greatest wholistic connection for both client and therapist. Where distance, travel and circumstance prevent this though, why wouldn't you explore online options? You can confidentially seek online support, watch thought leaders in this field, and practise their strategies, all without leaving home.

What are the benefits of relationship counselling?

Clients report that the initial step to seeking professional advice can be rather confronting and scary! I'm noticing more and more couples seeking support because their marriage is simply substandard and not necessarily on the rocks. If you're on the fence about relationship therapy, it's time to make up your mind and consider seeking help to achieve the life of your dreams. Here are six reasons marriage therapy is quite cool:

1. IT'S THE PREFERRED CHOICE OF THE PRIVILEGED

Step back for a moment and envision a person in therapy. For many, therapy is synonymous with celebrity and money. The most privileged people routinely seek out therapy because they know that therapy helps propel them towards the life they want. If you admire those you consider successful and famous, you'd be well-served to follow their lead and seek out a therapist!

2. IT CAN HELP YOU ACHIEVE YOUR DREAMS

Everyone feels stuck from time to time. There's no magic solution for a couple to achieve their dreams. No one else can meet your goals for you! However, a counsellor can help sort out what's holding you back from achieving a thriving and harmonious relationship and empower you to clear those blockages to begin living a romantic and connected life.

3. PEOPLE IN THERAPY ARE HEALTHIER

Awful symptoms of a poor relationship include anxiety, stress, and sadness – all connected with poor health – and dying younger! A therapist can help you get control of your emotions so you can live a happier life together. Even better, by talking through things with a therapist, you'll develop coping skills that can help you deal with your disconnection. Encouraging new patterns of neural circuitry, pathways and networks will allow you to relate in healthier, more resilient ways.

4. PSYCHOTHERAPY CLIENTS ARE PROACTIVE

Just as you go to the doctor or dentist for your annual check-up, a regular fortnightly or monthly session with a therapist can serve as a check-in for an outstanding relationship.

5. BREAK FAMILY CYCLES

Like it or not, our childhood environment shapes so much of who we are. An exciting aspect of psychotherapy is that it helps us to choose those parts of your culture you wish to flourish within and those you wish to discontinue. Furthermore, you can learn to provide healthy mirroring and make conscious choices about the best care possible for your children.

OTHER BENEFITS:

Counselling can simply help rekindle the attraction that you once had!

You can realise your needs and wants from the relationship, yourself and each other.

You can feel safe about being vocal with your feelings and you may even tackle past emotions from a long time ago.

Relationship counselling can help you plan the things that you want to do individually and together for a fulfilling lifestyle.

Achieve a great new perspective where your differences are acknowledged, embraced and you've developed positive strategies on how to handle conflicts healthily along the way.

No relationship is perfect, but every relationship has room for improvement. You and your partner – not your parents, your bank account or your job – control the direction of your relationship.

Relationship therapy helps heal insecure attachment styles, thereby fostering healthy relationships. A therapist can help you each sort through your role to arrive at a happier, more loving relationship – not to mention a better sex life.

They say the most important things in life are those you can't see! Everything that is worth keeping requires a bunch of genuine effort and commitment. Material possessions are replaceable, but people are not!

A harsh word and emotional pain highlights areas in the brain, similar to the effects of physical pain. Before you even think of letting go because it's all too unbearable, consider the peace in knowing you've tried every possible way to overcome the struggles and challenges in your married life. If you have children, all the more reason to leave a legacy of persistence, genuine kindness and love!
