FROM OUR HEART TO YOURS

Hi, I'm Andrea Camacho-Looker, Director of The Centre School of Dance, and I help families just like yours discover the emotional, spiritual, and developmental benefits of faith centered dance education for their children.

My focus is creating a God-honoring environment where children feel seen, known, and loved. Through high-quality instruction rooted in Godly values, we nurture confidence, character, and creativity in every dancer, whether they're taking their very first class or performing on stage.

Dance has the power to do more than just teach steps. It helps children build lifelong friendships, develop discipline, and find a greater sense of purpose — all while growing in their relationship with God. That's why hundreds of families across Cookeville have trusted us as their child's second home.

I've seen shy children blossom, struggling students find focus, and families deepen their faith through dance — and now I want the same for you.

It's time to give your child more than an activity. Let's give them a place to belong and a purpose bigger than themselves.

Blessings,
Andrea Camacho-Looker

The Missing Piece Every Child Needs

Some of the hardest decisions you make as a parent are choosing the right activities for your child.

Will this activity help them grow in confidence? Will it surround them with the right influences? Will it align with the values you're working so hard to build at home?

At The Centre School of Dance, we believe your child deserves more than just another activity.

They need a place to belong. They need people to love. And they need to grow into a purpose bigger than themselves.

Faith-centered dance is more than movement – it's ministry. Here's how dance can meet your child's deepest developmental needs:

Belonging – Our students feel safe, known, and accepted – not just as dancers, but as children of God.

Love – Your child will be mentored by instructors who model compassion, integrity, and faith.

Purpose – Through class work and performances your child will experience the joy of using their gifts for something greater than applause: blessing others and glorifying God.

"We're not just teaching dance steps. We're shaping hearts, building character, and helping each child know they matter deeply."

Your Next Step – What should you look for in a Dance Studio?

Choosing a studio isn't just about cost or location — it's about placing your child in the best environment to grow in faith, confidence, and community. Use this quick checklist:

? Culture Fit

- What is the focus of the studio's mission and messaging?
- Do teachers model strong character and serve as positive role models for students?
- Are costumes and music modest and age-appropriate?

? Safe & Loving Environment

- Are students seen, known, and nurtured with care and kindness?
- Are classes structured to encourage emotional safety and personal growth?

? Quality Dance instruction

- Does the studio hold any professional certifications?
- Are teachers certified, trained, and implementing a specific syllabus?
- Are there any opportunities to exam or benchmarks of success for dancers to track progress?

? Safety

- Are the staff background checked?
- Do teachers and staff receive safety training or certifications?
- What measures does the studio take to ensure children are safe and cared for?
