The Standard Processor

KEY IDEA

Standard Processors reflect the aspects of God's character that focus on truth, order, standards, and structure, and this design shapes how they perceive, interpret, and respond to their world—and their spouse.

KEY SCRIPTURES

- Genesis 1 - "The Creation Order"
- Deuteronomy 11:26–28 — "Blessings & Cursings" based on obedience.
- Exodus 20:1-17 - "The Ten Commandments"

LESSON & NOTES

KEY POINTS

- Standard Processors reflect God's truth-oriented, order-oriented nature
- Standards, processes & procedures, and justice or fairness are important
- There are strengths & weaknesses to being a Standard Processor
- These traits complement (not compete with) Relational Processors

Module 2 Lesson 2

HeartWork

The Standard Processor reflects certain aspects of God as emphasized in the Old Testament: Standards (Law), Processes & Procedures, Orderliness, Performance, Consequences (Blessings & Cursings), Right & Wrong, etc.

If you're a Standard Processor, can you relate to any of these? How so?

As a Standard Processor, what are your personal strengths and how do they complement your spouse?

What standards do you have for your spouse that you think they "should" live up to?

What is your response when they fall short? What is the impact of your response on them (emotionally)?

How do you respond when people don't do things the "right" way? What makes these things the "right way"?

Would you consider yourself to be organized and orderly? How so? What is your reaction / response when others are disorganized?

Have you ever been accused of being controlling? When do those times come? Do these times of being controlling have to do with people measuring up to standards or about people doing things you believe they should be doing? Are these helping or hindering performance? Is it helping or hindering the relationship?

What do you think about grace? Is this an area you struggle to understand or apply? Explain.
