One morning, Fuzzy the fox woke up and saw that the forest had lost all its colors. Everything looked gray and dull.

Fuzzy ran to find his best friend, Bella the bunny, who wore her yellow ribbon proudly. She hopped with surprise when she saw the gray trees and flowers.

"Let's find out what happened," said Bella with a smile. Fuzzy held her paw, and together they started their adventure.

Soon, they met Toby the turtle, who looked sad as he saw the gray leaves. "I miss the green", he sighed softly.

suddenly, oliver the owl swooped down from a tall gray tree. His big round eyes blinked as he asked, "Where did all the colors go?"

The four friends decided to search for the missing colors together. A trail of glowing sparkles appeared on the path ahead.

Fuzzy carefully held the brush, and Bella's eyes sparkled with excitement. "Paint, Fuzzy! Paint the world!" she cheered.

Fuzzy painted the trees, flowers, and sky, and colors burst back into the world. Red, yellow, and green filled the forest once more.

The forest was bright and alive again, and the friends laughed with joy. They learned that together, they could bring back the beauty of the world.
