Alligator
A story about friendship and learning to share.

Meet Aiden, a cheerful little boy who loves to build shapes with his colorful blocks.

His favorite shape is the triangle, and his favorite color is blue!

One sunny morning, Aiden met a friendly blue triangle alligator by the pond. "Hi! I'm Andy the Alligator," said the alligator with a big, toothy grin.

Hi! I'm Andy the Alligator.

It's my favorite block.

Aiden had one blue triangle block, and Andy wanted to play with it too.

But Aiden wasn't sure
if he should share.

"It's my favorite
block," he whispered.

Andy looked sad. "Maybe we can build something together?" he said softly. Aiden thought about it. He liked Andy, but he really loved his triangle block.

Maybe we can build something together?

Then, Aiden had an idea!
He placed the blue triangle block on the ground.
“Let’s make a big alligator house!”
Andy’s eyes sparkled with joy.

Wow, it looks amazing!

They used sticks, leaves, and the one blue triangle block to make the roof. The triangle fit perfectly at the top!
"Wow, it looks amazing!" cheered Andy.

Andy

Aiden realized something special — when he shared, the fun doubled!
Andy smiled. “Thank you for sharing, Aiden. You’re a great friend!”

From that day on, Aiden and Andy built shapes together every morning.

They laughed, shared, and learned that sharing makes playtime better.

If you had
ONE TOY
and a friend
wanted to play too,
What would you do?
Would you share
like Aiden?
