Once upon a modern time, in a cozy castle full of gadgets, lived Princess Bella—also known as Sleeping Beauty.

Princess Bella loved her beauty rest. She could nap through rain, sunshine, and even royal parades!

But lately, she had a problem. She always woke up late!

"Oh no!" said Bella. "I missed breakfast... again!"

The royal chef frowned. "You missed your pancakes, Your Highness!"

The Queen decided it was time to fix this.

Inside the box was the latest invention: The Royal Alarm Clock 3000!

"This clock will help you wake up on time!" said the Queen.

"Good morning, Princess Bella!" the clock chirped. "I'm here to keep you bright and early!"

Bella giggled. "You talk?!"

That night, she set the clock by her bed and whispered, "Don't let me oversleep."

Beep! Beep! Beep! The alarm rang bright and early.

"Five more minutes," mumbled Bella, pulling up her blanket.

A woman with long, wavy red hair, wearing a blue dress with gold embroidery, stands in a lush, sunlit garden. She is looking up at a flying clock-owl. The clock-owl is a mechanical bird with a clock face on its chest, wings made of brass, and a keychain hanging from its bottom. A stream of golden particles is blowing from its beak towards the woman's nose. In the background, a castle with towers and spires is visible through the trees.

The clock fluttered up and tickled her nose!

"Achoo!" Bella sneezed—and laughed herself awake.

"Good morning, sunshine!" said
the clock proudly.

From that day, Bella and her clock became the best of friends.

They went for morning walks in the garden.

...and danced during breakfast music hour!

But one morning, something strange happened.

"Oh no! My clock isn't waking up!" cried Bella.

She ran to the Royal Inventor's Workshop.

"It just needs new energy!" said the Inventor. "Try this kindness crystal."

A woman with long, wavy brown hair styled in a braid with pearl ornaments is shown in profile, looking intently at a glowing blue crystal she is holding. She is wearing a yellow dress with pink and gold accents. The crystal is being placed into a circular opening on a dark wooden clock face. The background is a dimly lit room with a globe and bookshelves.

Bella placed the crystal inside the clock and whispered, "Thank you for helping me every day."

Ding! The clock lit up brighter than ever.

"I'm back!" said the clock. "You recharged me with kindness!"

From that day on, Bella never took her mornings for granted.

*She even helped others
wake up on time!*

The whole castle buzzed with bright mornings and happy hearts.

*The Queen smiled.
"You've grown into a wonderful, responsible princess."*

*And so, Sleeping Beauty's alarm clock didn't just wake her up—
—it woke up her kindness, too.*
