

Rapunzel Screams Live

A 21st-century twist on the classic fairy tale of Rapunzel, where Wi-Fi replaces magic and likes replace cheers!

Rapunzel lived in a tall tower with no door but great internet connection!

She loved to sing, paint, and now....livestream her daily adventures!

Every morning, Rapunzel said, "Good morning, followers!"
and read comments from her fans.

Her videos went viral!
Everyone loved her singing and hair-styling tips.

A close-up illustration of Rapunzel from Disney's "Tangled". She has long, flowing blonde hair with a small pink flower tucked into it. She is wearing a purple dress with puffed sleeves and a corset-style bodice. Her eyes are wide and blue, and her mouth is open in a surprised expression. The background shows a window with a view of a castle and a garden with purple flowers.

She streamed all day long, morning to night, and forgot to brush her long hair!

One stormy night, the Wi-fi went out. No connection! No followers!

"Oh no! How will they know I'm okay?", she cried, refreshing her phone.

Then, a real knock!
"Hello? Are you all right up there?" called a voice.

It was Leo, the boy from the nearby village.
He came to check on her.

Without Wi-fi, Rapunzel and Leo talked, really talked!

They told stories, played games, and laughed until sunset.

The storm passed. The Wi-Fi bar blinked back on.

Rapunzel looked at her phone.....then at Leo.
"Let's not go live just yet," she said.

She realized that fun was better shared in real life.

Next day, she started a new stream called "Offline Adventures!"

Her viewers cheered, "That's so cool!"
"I'll try that too!"

Rapunzel made a rule: one hour of streaming, lots of hours for real life!

The tower was now filled with laughter,
art, and friendship.

Rapunzel always ended her streams saying,
"Be kind, go outside, and keep your heart online, not just your screen!"

Moral of the Story!

Too much screen time can make you forget real joy!
True friends don't need Wi-Fi, just your time.
