

Theory Test Study Planner

A calm, realistic revision plan — steady progress, not pressure.

There's no need to cram. Most learners need somewhere between 15–25 hours of genuine revision, spread across a few weeks, to feel properly ready. This planner breaks that down into short, manageable sessions — with rest days built in on purpose, not as an afterthought.

Your 4-Week Plan

Fill in a short focus for each day. A blank box is a rest day — and that's a genuine part of the plan, not a gap in it.

Week 1	Mon	Tue	Wed	Thu	Fri	Sat	Sun
Focus

Week 2	Mon	Tue	Wed	Thu	Fri	Sat	Sun
Focus

Week 3	Mon	Tue	Wed	Thu	Fri	Sat	Sun
Focus

Week 4	Mon	Tue	Wed	Thu	Fri	Sat	Sun
Focus

Theory Test Study Planner

Official Topic Checklist

The multiple-choice section draws from 14 official topic areas. Tick each one off as you cover it — and be honest with yourself about “covered” versus “confident.” There's a column for both.

Topic	Covered	Confident
Alertness	☐	☐
Attitude	☐	☐
Safety and your vehicle	☐	☐
Safety margins	☐	☐
Hazard awareness	☐	☐
Vulnerable road users	☐	☐
Other types of vehicle	☐	☐
Vehicle handling	☐	☐
Motorway rules	☐	☐
Rules of the road	☐	☐
Road and traffic signs	☐	☐
Essential documents	☐	☐
Incidents, accidents and emergencies	☐	☐
Vehicle loading	☐	☐

A Few Reminders

- You need 43/50 on multiple choice and 44/75 on hazard perception — both in the same sitting.
- Aim for 46–47/50 and 55+/75 on practice mocks before booking, so nerves on the day don't eat into your margin.
- Short, regular sessions beat long irregular ones — for both memory and how calm you'll feel.
- A blank day on this planner is a rest day, not a missed one.
- Read the full Official Highway Code at least once, whichever method you mainly use.