What this program is

How the Bible Became a Book is a self-paced educational course offered through The Home of Meaning, available in two paths: The Contemplative Path and The Accompanied Path. It presents a historical overview of how the Bible came to exist, drawing on scholarship that includes differing perspectives. It does not aim to promote or dismiss any faith. Some of this history may challenge assumptions you hold. Take the time you need with it. This course is not a substitute for professional psychological, psychiatric, medical, or religious counselling. If you are navigating a mental health crisis, please seek the care of a qualified professional.

Access

Upon enrollment, you receive six months of access to all course materials on The Contemplative Path, or eight months on The Accompanied Path. At the end of that period, access concludes. Extensions are not standard but may be considered in exceptional circumstances. Please reach out at thehomeofmeaning.com/connect.

The Accompanied Path
The Accompanied Path includes three 30-minute conversations, scheduled at mutually agreed times and held within your access period. You may also email questions about the course material, which I will answer personally. Please allow up to three business days for email replies. Missed or unused sessions cannot be carried beyond your access period.

A signed copy of Inclusive Spirituality is included with the Accompanied Path and will be shipped to addresses in Canada and the United States within 10 business days of enrolment. Standard shipping within these regions is included in the course price. Special arrangements for international shipping can be discussed, including applicable shipping costs, before enrolment. Delivery times vary by destination and postal service, and delays may occur.

Refund policy
We offer a full refund within seven days of enrollment, provided you have not watched any module or downloaded the workbook. On The Accompanied Path, refunds are not available once a conversation has taken place. After seven days or after accessing materials, refunds are not available. If you are uncertain whether this course is right for you, please reach out before enrolling.

Your responsibility
This course asks for genuine engagement. The teachings, workbook, and reflection questions are designed to work together. Approaching them with honesty and curiosity will shape what you take from them.

Third-party resources
The Deeper Dive lists books and websites created by others. I do not control or necessarily endorse their content, and some may change or become unavailable.

Intellectual property
All course materials, including videos, the workbook, and answer keys, are the intellectual property of The Home of Meaning and are for your personal use only. They may not be shared, reproduced, or distributed without written permission
