

The Sticky Note Strategist

Lots of ideas
Lots of goals
Lots of actions to take

WHERE YOUR STRATEGY LIVES

Sticky notes, Notes app, bar napkins

You never run out of ideas. The next step is giving them one home and one direction.

Your strategic superpowers

- You are an idea machine who sees possibilities everywhere
- You are action-oriented and capture insights in the moment
- You care about goals and want to make things happen

Your blind spots

- Scattered ideas never connect into a single bigger picture
- When everything is a priority, nothing gets finished
- It is hard to explain to others what matters most right now

How to take better advantage of your strategic vibe

Your idea bank is an asset. With a long-term vision as your filter, every sticky note becomes a yes, not yet, or no instead of one more thing on the pile.

The Sticky Note Strategist

From Sticky Note Strategist to Strategic CEO

FROM		TO
Lots of ideas, no filter	→	One long-term vision every idea gets measured against
Lots of goals and actions	→	A short list of this year's priorities, with the rest parked on purpose
Notes scattered everywhere	→	One home for your strategy: a clear, shareable slide deck

What is a contextual strategy?

A contextual strategy is built from your company's long-term vision from the 30,000 foot view. Each of the frameworks gives added flavor to your strategy, giving direction to every decision, initiative, target and day-to-day action. The result is crystal clear: you and any of your stakeholders can instantly tell whether a decision moves toward the vision or drifts from it.

- Easy to refresh. Update annually what changed in your business, clients or marketplace, and keep what still works.
- Easy to communicate. It lives in a clear, presentable slide deck, not on sticky notes, in your Notes app or on a bar napkin.
- Built for alignment and engagement. When your team, key advisors, networking besties, and referral partners can all see your vision, they know how to help and why it matters.
