

CORY THE CANDY CORN GHOST

The World's Sweetest Collector

Cory was a little ghost, made of candy corn, which meant he was very sweet! But being sweet made it hard to be spooky. "Boo!" he'd whisper, but all the other ghosts would just giggle.

One sunny day (even ghosts like sunny days!), Cory decided he didn't want to be spooky anymore. He wanted to be special! "I'll be the world's first candy corn collector!" he declared.

He floated through fields of sunflowers and past tall, green trees.
He saw a sparkly, rainbow-striped candy corn! "My first one!" he cheered.

Next, he soared over a cozy little town. In a garden, he found a tiny, polka-dotted candy corn hiding next to a pumpkin. How cute!

When he entered a dark cave, he discovered a glowing, star-shaped candy corn, shining like a little light!

He found candy corn everywhere
even in trees

Cory collected so many unique candy corns: swirly ones, striped ones, and even some that looked like tiny animals! His collection grew bigger and bigger.

Eventually, Cory had the most amazing collection of candy corn in the whole wide world! He wasn't spooky, but he was very special, and that was even better.
