What Is CPTG Testing? How dōTERRA Tests Essential Oils for Quality and Purity

Science Spotlight

- CPTG Certified Pure Tested Grade is dōTERRA's sequence of rigorous tests applied to the essential oils.
- Testing occurs at multiple points, including distillation at the source, upon arrival at dōTERRA's production facility and again during bottling.
- Testing is conducted by dōTERRA's in-house laboratory, staffed by more than 20 scientists, and verified by the Aromatic Plant Research Center, a respected lab in the essential oil industry.

What Do We Mean By "Pure"?

1. It's sourced from nature rather than synthetically produced in a lab.
2. It's authentic. Its botanical identity is verified through testing, confirming that it is what it says it is.
3. It's undiluted by fillers or additives. It contains no undisclosed ingredients like fragrances, dyes, or preservatives.

Why Essential Oil Testing Matters

Essential oils are not regulated under a single, internationally consistent purity standard. Terms like "100% pure" and "natural" carry no legally binding definition in most markets.

Industry estimates suggest that a large percentage of commercially available essential oils have been adulterated in some form, whether diluted with carrier oils, extended with synthetic aromatic chemicals or blended with cheaper botanical substitutes.

Without that test, a customer has no way to know whether the linalool in a bottle came from a Lavender field in Bulgaria or a chemical plant.

Summer Cooling Wipes with Peppermint and Eucalyptus Oil

DIY

This easy DIY recipe for summertime is perfect for refreshing the skin. Adding Peppermint and Eucalyptus oil gives your skin an additional cooling sensation so you can enjoy the sun, all day long.

Ingredients:

- 2 cups distilled water
- 2 tablespoons Fractionated Coconut Oil
- 10-15 drops Peppermint essential oil
- 10-15 drops Eucalyptus essential oil
- 3-5 flour cloth towels

Instructions:

1. Cut flour cloth towels into fourths or quarters.
2. In a large bowl, combine all ingredients then add the cloths.
3. Soak cloths in the liquid mixture for about an hour, or until there are no dry spots.
4. Ring out each cloth until it is damp and no more liquid comes out.
5. Tightly roll up the cloths and store them together in an airtight container or in a reusable silicon bag for on-the-go use.

Store used wipes in a separate bag, wash, and reuse for your next outdoor trip! If the wipes become dry during use, simply re-dampen with a bit of bottled water.

Tip: For an extra cooling effect, keep your wipes in a chilled snack or beverage cooler to take with you on your pool, beach, or lake day.
