

Biography

Glen Morrison is a retired military police officer who served for 31 years in the Canadian Armed Forces. Throughout his career, he was responsible for counter-intelligence operations both domestically and overseas. His duties included major case management and surveillance operations, ensuring the security and safety of the nation.

After retiring from the military, he transitioned to a role as a corporate security advisor for a provincial government. In this capacity, he was responsible for the safety and security of staff and judicial personnel. His expertise in physical security assessments, risk assessments, and residential assessments contributed to the establishment of secure environments for all individuals under his purview.

His extensive experience in both military and corporate security has equipped him with unique skills and insights, allowing him to effectively manage complex security challenges and provide comprehensive safety solutions. Today, he continues to apply his knowledge and skills in various capacities, always prioritizing the well-being and security of those he serves.