GENERATORS AND MANGENS

Strategy:

Wait to respond → life brings you opportunities, people, questions. Your sacral answers with a simple “uh-huh” (yes) or “uh-uh” (no).

Felt sense (in the body):

- A YES feels like your belly expands, your chest lifts, you lean forward with energy.
- A NO feels like your gut tightens, your shoulders slump, your body wants to pull back.
- Think of a toddler—when they don’t want something, you can see it in their whole body.

Example (relatable):

Picture a friend asking: “Do you want sushi tonight?” Before you even think, your body lights up with a “Mmm, YES!” Or maybe your stomach sinks and you mutter, “nah.” That first body response is the truth.

GENERATORS AND MANGENS

Next-level awareness:

Your sacral isn't just yes/no—it has nuance. It may give you a “mmm, more info,” or show you when your body says yes but your mind resists.

The mastery is learning to trust your sacral over conditioning. Notice how much energy is available when you say yes to the right things—and how drained you feel when you override your gut.

Prompt for the group:

“Think of a recent time you said yes when your body said no—or vice versa. How did your body let you know the truth? Where did you feel it?”

GENERATORS + MGS WITH EMOTIONAL AUTHORITY

Strategy :

You still trust that sacral gut “uh-huh / uh-uh”... but not in the heat of the moment. You’ve got an emotional wave — highs, lows, and neutral. Clarity only comes once the wave evens out.

How it feels in your body:

- In the high: everything feels like a YES. You want to sign the contract, marry the stranger, adopt 3 cats. 🐱
- In the low: nothing feels right. Even tacos don’t taste good. 🌮😞
- In the neutral: ahhh... this is where you hear your true sacral response without the mood distortion.

GENERATORS + MGS WITH EMOTIONAL AUTHORITY

Example:

Your partner says, “Let’s book that trip to Bali!”

- On a high you’re like, “YES, I’ll sell my car if I have to!”
- On a low you’re like, “Traveling sounds like actual torture.”
- The truth? Neither extreme is the real answer. Wait until the emotional wave calms down... then ask your sacral again.

Next-level awareness:

Your power move is patience. The sacral truth is always there, but emotions are like static on the radio. Wait out the song, then tune in. That’s how you make decisions you won’t regret.

Prompt for the group:

“Think of a time you said YES in the heat of the moment and later thought, ‘Why did I do that?’ What would’ve happened if you waited 24 hours?”

P R O J E C T O R S

Strategy:

You don't need an invite to choose lunch, buy shoes, or binge Netflix.

You wait for the big invitations — love, career, collaborations, where you plant your roots. The places where recognition really matters.

How it feels in your body:

- A right invitation feels like a gift from the universe. Your body softens, energy flows, you feel lit up just being seen.
- A wrong one feels like dragging yourself to a party where nobody even notices you showed up. Tight chest, drained energy, bitter AF.

Example:

Uninvited advice = talking to a brick wall.

Invited guidance = someone leans in and says, "Wow, you see things nobody else does." That glow you feel? That's your lane.

P R O J E C T O R S

Next-level awareness (advanced):

The art is discerning which invitations are truly for you. Recognition isn't always equal. Just because someone asks doesn't mean it's aligned. Watch your body: does it expand and relax (yes), or does it tense and shrink (no)?

Prompt for the group:

“Think of a time you said yes to an invitation that drained you. What signals did your body give you beforehand that you ignored?”

(the instant-knowers 🐸 — your spleen whispers once and moves on)

Felt sense: A quiet “yes/no” in the moment — like goosebumps, a sudden calm, or a subtle tug forward. If you hesitate? Poof, it’s gone.

Example: Someone asks if you want to join their project. Your spleen says “yes” with a body-lightening zing... but you overthink it, and the clarity disappears.

Next-level awareness: Practice listening to that first whisper. Your spleen doesn’t repeat itself, but it’s almost always right.

Prompt: “When have you ignored your first instinct — and realized later it was spot on?”

EMOTIONAL PROJECTOR

(the wave riders — clarity comes with time)

Felt sense: Highs feel like YES to everything. Lows feel like NO to everything. Truth lives in the neutral middle.

Example: On a high you say, “I’ll totally move in with you!” On a low you think, “I can’t even stand your face.” The real answer comes after the storm passes.

Next-level awareness: Your mastery is patience. Sleep on it. Let the wave move through before saying yes to big things.

Prompt: “What’s one decision you regret making in the heat of the moment?”

E G O P R O J E C T O R

(the willpower crew — if your heart's not in it, don't bother)

Felt sense: A real “yes” feels like chest-forward confidence, pride, and a genuine I want this. A false yes feels heavy, like obligation.

Example: You say yes to a collab just to be nice — then resent every second of it. But when your will is engaged? You can move mountains.

Next-level awareness: Your authority is selfish in the best way — it has to matter to YOU. That's the cleanest energy you can offer.

Prompt: “Where are you saying yes out of guilt instead of genuine desire?”

MENTAL/ENVIRONMENT PROJECTOR

(the environmentals — clarity comes from place + people)

Felt sense: You don't have an inner "yes/no." You need to talk things out in the right environment with the right people. Neutral spaces bring clarity; the wrong environment scrambles you.

Example: You're in a chaotic café and can't make a decision. Then you step outside into the park, chat with a trusted friend, and suddenly everything makes sense.

Next-level awareness: Don't pressure yourself to "know." Instead, curate spaces and conversations that bring clarity naturally.

Prompt: "Where do you feel most clear — in your body, mind, and energy — when making decisions?"

MANIFESTORS

(aka the Firestarters — here to initiate, not ask for permission)

Strategy:

You're not here to wait around — you're here to inform and initiate. Informing isn't about asking — it's a power move that clears resistance before you light the match.

How it feels in your body:

- A true urge feels like lightning in your system — restless, electric, “I have to do this now.”
- Suppression feels like being caged — pressure in the chest, frustration, anger simmering because your fire has nowhere to go.

M A N I F E S T O R S

Example:

You wake up one morning and know you're quitting your job. That urge is undeniable — your whole body is buzzing, you can't stop pacing. If you just ghost your boss, chaos follows. But if you inform with a simple, "Hey, I need to let you know I'm done here, effective immediately," — boom. Shock factor gone, power still intact.

Next-level awareness:

Your urges are divine downloads. But they burn out fast if you over-explain or wait for approval. The magic is in trusting the spark AND informing the people your fire might touch. When you master this, people stop resisting and start following your lead.

Prompt for the group:

"Think of a time you followed an urge without asking for permission. How did it feel in your body — electric, free, maybe even rebellious?"

EMOTIONAL MANIFESTORS

(the wave riders + firestarters)

Felt sense: The urge hits like lightning, but if you act in the high/low, you regret it. True clarity comes after the wave calms.

Example: At the high: “I’m moving to Bali tomorrow!” At the low: “I hate everyone, I’m deleting Instagram.” Neutral wave: “Okay, Bali... but next year.”

Next-level awareness: Your initiations change the world when you give them 24–48 hrs to settle. That pause saves you from trailblazing straight into regret.

Prompt: “What’s one thing you started in the heat of emotion that fizzled once the wave passed?”

S P L E N I C M A N I F E S T O R S

(the whisper-listeners)

Felt sense: The spleen gives you an instant “now or never” hit. It’s subtle — like a body whisper, goosebumps, a sudden calm.

Example: Someone says, “Want to collaborate?” and your spleen zings YES before your brain processes it. If you hesitate, the moment’s gone.

Next-level awareness: You don’t need time. You need trust. The urge + splenic whisper = green light.

Prompt: “When’s a time you followed that instant hit — and it was spot on?”

EGO MANIFESTORS

(the heart-led powerhouses)

Felt sense: A real “yes” feels like chest-out pride, strong heartbeat, I want this because it matters to me.

Example: You initiate a project not because it’s “logical,” but because your heart is in it. When your ego’s aligned, others rally behind you. When it’s not, it drains fast.

Next-level awareness: Your willpower is sacred. You don’t owe anyone action unless your heart’s on fire for it.

Prompt: “What’s one thing you pushed through without real desire — and what did it cost you?”

(aka the Lunar Oracles — mirrors of the collective)

Strategy:

Wait a full lunar cycle (about 28 days) before making the big decisions — jobs, moves, partnerships. Day-to-day? Flow with your environment, your energy changes as the transits shift.

How it feels in your body:

- When you're in the right place/with the right people: your body feels light, open, radiant.
- When you're in the wrong place/with the wrong people: your energy dulls, heavy, like you've put on someone else's ill-fitting jacket.

Example:

Your friend wants you to move in together. Day 1 you're excited. Day 7 you feel claustrophobic. Day 20 you're imagining murder. By Day 28, if the idea still feels good, it's probably aligned.

Next-level awareness:

You are literally a walking lunar calendar. The Moon transiting through each gate and sign gives you a full spectrum view before clarity lands. Your gift is perspective — you see things others miss because you've sampled it all.

Prompt for the group:

“Think of a time you rushed into a yes and later felt trapped. How might waiting through your own cycles have changed the outcome?”
