Keep Your Resume Updated

In today's fast-paced job market, having an up-to-date resume readily available online is crucial. Platforms like LinkedIn not only allow you to showcase your professional background and achievements but also serve as a networking tool that keeps you connected with industry leaders and potential employers.

An updated, downloadable profile can attract recruiters and employers actively seeking candidates with your skillset.

Your current employer may not be keen on this, but provided that you are an asset to your current boss, this action could work in your favour.
