

AI Twin Studio Prompt Pack

Scene Prompts for CloneUp – Precision Image Model inside SoloGenius

Create Instant AI Twin Images

Let's be honest: most solopreneurs are running their business on the same 3 half-decent headshots. One for the website. One for social. One that "will do for now."

Meanwhile, your business is evolving, your brand is getting sharper... and your photos still look like "that one time you remembered to book a photographer."

That's where your AI twin comes in.

With SoloGenius + CloneUp – Precision Image Model, you're not just slapping a filter on an old selfie. You're building your own on-demand photoshoot studio: same "you," different scenes, different moods, endless possibilities—without lights, lenses, or a big production.

This prompt pack is here to make that easy.

You'll get scene ideas and simple fill-in templates so you don't have to stare at a blank box wondering what to type. You bring your brand details (outfits, colors, hairstyle, vibe). We bring the concepts, structure, and creative direction.

The goal: help you create a cohesive library of AI twin images you can use across your:

- Website & sales pages
- Social content
- Presentations, thumbnails, and more

Over time, you'll naturally build up a collection of images you can reuse whenever you need them.

But the real power is speed: any time you think, "I need a picture of me doing X," you can generate a fresh, made-for-this-moment image in minutes—instead of digging through old photos, telling yourself you'll book a new photoshoot "someday when I can afford it," and defaulting to the same old "good enough" picture again.

Step 1 – Train Your CloneUp Model Properly

Before you touch the prompts, make sure your CloneUp – Precision Image Model is trained well enough that it actually looks and feels like you.

A few simple guidelines:

Use fresh, consistent images

Ideally from one short photo session.

- Same general look and "current you."
- Try to avoid mixing very old photos with much newer ones where you look noticeably different in age, style, or vibe.

You don't need 30+ photos

In many cases it works better with fewer, more consistent images:

- Aim for 8–15 good photos
- Similar overall look, but from different angles (front, slight side, seated, standing)
- Vary expressions and emotions (neutral, smiling, thinking, talking) rather than your whole identity.

Keep them clean and clear

- Good lighting, no heavy filters or extreme effects.
- Avoid very busy backgrounds or wild color grading.

If you test a few prompts and you're not entirely happy with how your AI twin is rendering you, no drama—that's just feedback:

- It usually means your training set was a bit too mixed (different eras, styles, lighting).
- Simply create a new CloneUp model with a tighter, more consistent set of photos and try again.

Think of it like a second photo shoot: each new model is a fresh, more refined version of your brand twin.

Once you're happy with how CloneUp is generating you, you're ready to put this prompt pack to work.

Step 2 – A Quick Note About AI Images (So You Don't Go Crazy)

AI image models (including CloneUp – Precision Image Model inside SoloGenius) will not give you the exact same image every time you run the same prompt.

That's normal.

A few things to keep in mind:

Each run = a new variation

Even with the same description, the model will generate a slightly different version of you, the pose, or the background.

You won't love every result

Sometimes it nails it. Sometimes it's "almost."
Sometimes it's... nope.
That doesn't mean your scene idea is bad—it just means you need a few more rolls of the dice.

Run the same scene several times

When you like the direction but not the exact image, generate multiple versions and pick the best 1–2 keepers.

Tiny tweaks can help a lot

If something feels off (pose, background, props), you can adjust your list with a short note like:

- "More empty space on the right side"
- "Softer smile"
- "Laptop closed instead of open"
- "Simpler, cleaner background"

Think of these as idea starters and scene templates, not rigid rules.

Use them to:

- Decide where you want your AI twin (desk, café, beach, city, stage, etc.)
- Decide what you're doing (teaching, celebrating, planning, resting, launching)
- Then fine-tune with a few small tweaks until the image feels like you.

Step 3 – How This Prompt Pack Works

You're not getting one giant "perfect prompt."

You're getting a collection of scene prompts organized by topic that you can quickly adapt to look and feel like you.

You'll also find Idea Starters in each topic—short concept sparks you can turn into your own custom scenes.

Each scene prompt:

- Tells you where you are and what you're doing
- Suggests how we see you (close-up, waist-up, full-body, etc.)
- Includes a default expression / mood / body language
- Sets up the environment and props (desk, coffee, laptop, city street, café, etc.)
- Often hints at the lighting / vibe

You don't have to invent any of that from scratch.

Your job is simply to:

1. Add your personal style details

For every scene you want to use, you'll fill in:

- Clothing
- Accessories
- Appearance / hairstyle
- Brand colors

The scene prompts gives you the bones.

Your notes and tweaks turn it into your version of that moment.

2. Tweak what doesn't match your style

If anything in the scene prompt doesn't match what you want, you can soften it, change it, or add to it as you wish. Small changes here—like "looking into the camera" vs "looking off to the side," or "big celebratory smile" vs "soft, confident smile"—can totally shift the energy of the image without rewriting the whole scene.

 Quick note: You can also use the scene prompts exactly as they are, without adding clothing or brand details. In that case, the AI will decide your outfit, colors, and small details for you. It's less controlled and less on-brand, but it can be a fun way to discover new looks and then refine from there.

How to Use These Idea Starters

These are not full prompts—they're quick idea sparks to kick your creativity into gear.

Use them to inspire a scene, then:

1. Decide the framing and mood you want
2. Turn the idea into a short scene description in your own words
3. Add your details (Clothing, Accessories, Appearance/hairstyle, Brand colors)

You can also mix one Idea Starter with another scene or style to create something completely new.

Designing Your AI Clone Images Template (What to Add to Each Scene)

Before you scroll to the ideas, here are the core details you'll add to make each image feel like you.

Think of this as a checklist of what to include or decide for every scene—whether you literally write it out as notes, or just keep it in mind when you edit the prompt.

Core Details to Add

For each scene you want to use, add your details for:

Clothing

What you're wearing in this specific scene.

Accessories

Any accessories you want visible—jewelry, glasses, watch, hat, etc.

Appearance / hairstyle

How you want your hair / grooming / makeup.

Brand colors

Where and how your brand colors show up—background, props, screens, details on clothes, etc.

You can jot these down under each scene, or just mentally plug them in when you copy the description into CloneUp.

Some things might repeat (like your go-to hairstyle), and some will change from scene to scene (like outfits or where your colors appear).

If you want to go a bit deeper for a specific image, you can also tweak:

- Framing: How much of you we see: close-up, waist-up, full-body, etc.
- Expression: Your facial expression / emotional vibe/eye direction.
- Activity / gestures / body language: What you're physically doing in the scene.
- Lighting / mood: Overall feel of the scene—bright and airy, cozy and warm, dramatic, etc.

...but you'll already see suggestions for those inside each scene description, so you only need to adjust what doesn't quite match your style.

Example

Scene Prompt:

A photo of @LINE standing confidently in a bright, modern home office, framed waist-up in the center of the image. @LINE is facing the camera with a relaxed, welcoming smile, one hand lightly resting on the edge of a clean white desk and the other slightly gesturing, as if mid-explanation. On the desk, a slim laptop is open beside a notebook, pen, and a coffee mug, with a few neatly arranged props (sticky notes, a closed planner, a small plant). The background shows soft-focus shelves with a few books, a framed print, and some office supplies. Natural light washes in from the side, creating a soft glow on @LINE's face and a gentle gradient in the background.

My details:

Clothing: A tailored light beige-pink blazer over a simple top and well-fitted dark grey trousers—polished but still approachable

Accessories: None

Appearance/hairstyle: Loose waves and natural makeup.

Example 2

Scene prompt:

A photo of @LINE at a small round marble table on the outdoor terrace of a Paris café, sitting on a classic rattan bistro chair with a woven pattern. The image is framed from mid-torso up. @LINE has a soft, gentle smile and is looking directly into the camera. One hand rests on a coffee cup, while the other hand is placed near an open notebook on the table, as if pausing between thoughts. Warm afternoon light softens the scene and creates a cozy, inviting mood. Behind @LINE, cream-colored Haussmann-style buildings with tall windows and black wrought-iron balconies line the street. A red café awning with the word "Café" on it and a few softly blurred people walking past on the sidewalk add a lively Parisian atmosphere.

My details:

Clothing: Trending sweater in beige with pink, yellow, turquoise butterflies, dark jeans and a cute soft pink Parisian style cap-hat

Accessories: small gold hoop earrings and a necklace with a beige-pink stone. Ring on her finger, same style as necklace. Light pink Chanel bag on table.

Hairstyle/appearance: loose waves, natural makeup

Background & brand colors: soft pink, yellow and teal in details in the background

Optional: Style & Mood Boosters

(For Extra Cinematic Flair)

If you want some of your AI twin images to feel more cinematic, editorial, or stylized, you can add 1–2 short style phrases to your scene description.

You don't need to use this to get great images. Treat it like a little menu of "vibe add-ons" you copy-paste whenever it feels fun. Just add it to the end of your scene prompts.

Lighting ideas

- "soft, bright natural daylight, clean and airy"
- "warm golden hour light with a gentle glow"
- "dramatic, directional studio lighting with deep shadows"
- "moody low light with a few strong highlights in the background"

Mood / overall vibe

- "calm, grounded, and inviting"
- "confident, high-energy, ready to take action"
- "reflective and thoughtful, slightly moody"
- "bold, editorial CEO energy"

Color / grading feel

- "soft pastel tones with a warm feel"
- "rich, saturated colors with strong contrast"
- "muted, desaturated tones for a calm, minimal look"
- "bright, playful colors that feel fun and energetic"

Optional camera & lens flavor

If you like the cinematic language, you can also add short phrases like:

- "shot like a cinematic 35mm portrait with shallow depth of field"
- "high-resolution editorial-style portrait with subtle film grain"
- "looks like a professional studio headshot with a softly blurred background"
- "stylized like a vintage film photograph with gentle grain and softness"

You don't have to understand the technical parts—the model does.

Just treat these as little style boosts you can plug in.

Example of how it can all come together:

"warm golden hour light with a gentle glow, calm and inviting mood, shot like a cinematic 35mm portrait with shallow depth of field"

Again: totally optional.

In the next part of the document, you'll see all the scene ideas.

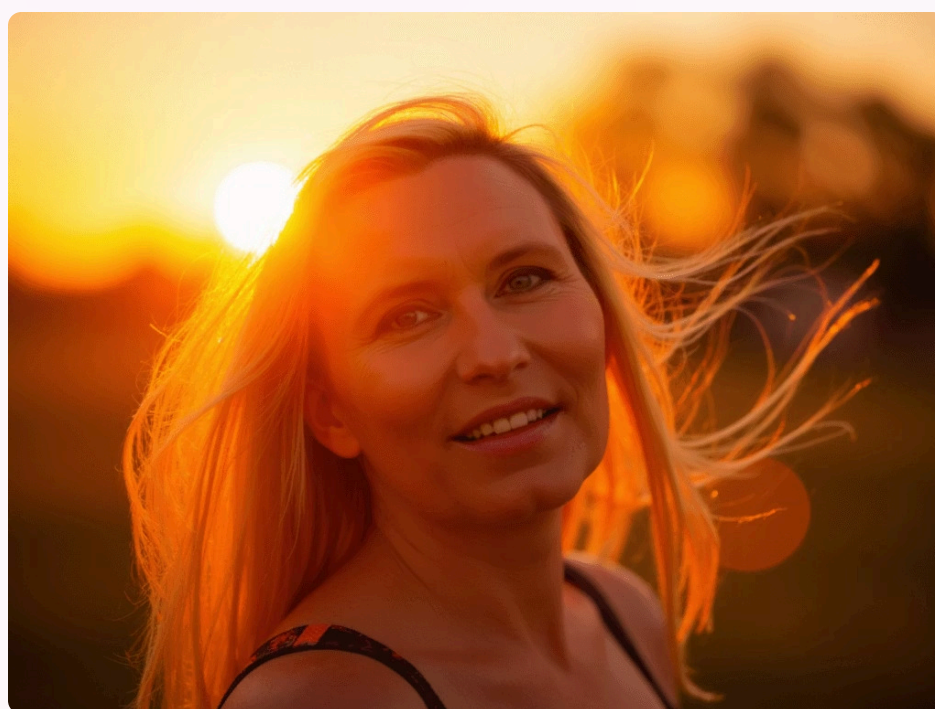

All you have to do is:

1. Pick a scene
2. Fill in the customized details needed
3. Use that description inside CloneUp to generate your AI twin images

Over time, you'll build a reusable SoloGenius-powered image library of "you" that you can drop into Canva templates, websites, funnels, sales pages, and posts—without constantly thinking, "I really should book a new photoshoot."

A close-up portrait of @YOURNAME looking directly into the camera with a warm, approachable smile, as if talking to one person. The background is soft and unobtrusive, and the lighting is even and gentle, giving a friendly, human, "you can trust me" feel ideal for about pages and social bios.

• Thoughtful Side-Gaze Portrait

A close-up of @YOURNAME turned slightly to one side, looking off-camera with a thoughtful, reflective expression. The background is softly blurred, and the lighting creates a calm, quiet mood—as if @YOURNAME is thinking through an idea or listening deeply. Great for posts or pages about strategy, reflection, or vision.

• Laughing / In-Motion Portrait

A candid-feeling close-up of @YOURNAME mid-laugh or mid-smile, capturing natural movement and personality. This image feels fun, real, and spontaneous—perfect for showing your playful side.

• Profile-in-Focus Portrait

A side-profile close-up of @YOURNAME, with their profile in sharp focus and the background blurred into soft shapes. The lighting gently outlines the face and hair, creating a clean, artistic look. This works well for more creative, reflective, or "brand story" moments.

• Headshot with Hands in Frame

A close-up portrait of @YOURNAME where the hands are lightly included in the frame—for example, chin resting gently on hands, fingers near the cheek, or one hand touching the collar or neckline. The expression is soft and present, and the background remains simple. This adds intimacy and warmth to a standard headshot.

• Over-the-Shoulder Look Back

A portrait of @YOURNAME turned slightly away from the camera, looking back over their shoulder with a playful, curious, or knowing expression. The background is softly blurred, with light catching the side of the face and hair. This has a dynamic feel—great for content about new chapters, bold moves, or "behind the scenes."

• Monochrome Mood Portrait

A close-up portrait of @YOURNAME designed to work beautifully in black-and-white or very muted color. The lighting is more directional, creating gentle highlights and deeper shadows on the face for a dramatic, artistic look. The expression can be neutral, thoughtful, or slightly serious, giving a timeless, classic feel.

Cinematic & Stylized Portraits

(Optional, for extra drama and mood)

Use these when you want something that feels more like a movie still, album cover, or editorial shoot. They work great with the Style & Mood Boosters if you want to dial things up.

• Golden Hour Glow Portrait

A close-up, cinematic portrait of @YOURNAME outdoors at golden hour, with the warm sunset behind them creating a soft glow around their hair. The face is gently lit from the front so the features stay clear and flattering, with soft shadows adding depth. The background fades into a warm, softly blurred scene, giving the image a dreamy, high-end look.

• Editorial Close-Up

An extreme close-up portrait of @YOURNAME, tightly framed around the face so the eyes, skin texture, and expression take center stage. Soft studio lighting highlights natural details while subtle shadows add structure to the face. The background is clean and minimal, and the overall tone feels cool, polished, and fashion-editorial.

• Vintage Hollywood Glamour

A classic 1940s-inspired studio portrait of @YOURNAME posed elegantly against a dark, velvety backdrop. @YOURNAME is turned slightly to one side with the head angled toward the camera, wearing a composed, confident expression. Dramatic studio lighting sculpts the face with bright highlights and deep, soft shadows, creating a glamorous old-Hollywood movie star feel.

• Rainy Window Reflection

A contemplative portrait of @YOURNAME seen through a rain-streaked window. Raindrops on the glass are visible in the foreground, with @YOURNAME softly lit from inside by warm, gentle light. Outside the window, blurred city lights turn into soft, colorful bokeh, creating a moody, reflective atmosphere—as if @YOURNAME is paused in a quiet moment of thought.

• Action Movie Poster Portrait

A bold, high-intensity portrait of @YOURNAME styled like an action movie poster. @YOURNAME is centered in the frame with a focused, determined expression, as if ready to take on a big challenge. Subtle smoke, mist, or particles surround them, and strong, directional lighting creates sharp highlights and deep shadows. The overall color feel is vivid and cinematic, with a dramatic, high-stakes mood.

• Soft Candlelight Glow

An intimate medium close-up of @YOURNAME lit only by the warm, flickering light of a nearby candle. One side of the face is softly illuminated while the other falls into gentle shadow, giving a cozy, romantic feel. The background fades into darkness, keeping the viewer's attention on @YOURNAME's peaceful, slightly dreamy expression.

You can now:

Choose 3–5 scene prompts

Grab a mix: one portrait, one office, one lifestyle, maybe one fun or cinematic.

You don't need to use everything at once—just enough to feel like "a real shoot."

Fill in your details once

Add your Clothing, Accessories, Appearance/hairstyle, and Brand colors.

You can reuse these notes across multiple scenes so it goes faster.

Run each scene a few times in CloneUp

Keep the 1–2 best versions from each scene.

Those become your first "AI shoot" — ready for Canva, websites, funnels, and posts.

Save your favorite prompts

When a scene works really well, save that final prompt somewhere safe (inside SoloGenius, your Genius File notes, or a simple doc).

That's now a repeatable look you can come back to whenever you need it.

A quick reminder

You don't have to get this "perfect."

Think of CloneUp as your always-available photographer:
